Democrats Set Sights on 1972 House Elections

Federal Census Likely to Shift District Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Party is drafting a batt'e plan to apply the tools and techniques of national politics to state legislative races in a long struggle that could affect the complexion of Congress for a decade.

At issue is the process through which the House of Representatives, now controlled by the Democrats, will be reshaped as a result of the 1970 census. Population shifts revealed by the census are certain to require wholesale changes in congressional district boundaries before the 1972 House elections.

Those changes will be made by state legislatures whose members will be up for election next year.

The state races are critical to the future of the Republican party, too, but GOP strategists are confident they automatically will benefit from any realignment of congressional districts.

Backed by the most recent Supreme Court decision—that state legislatures must make a "good faith effort to achieve precise mathematical equality" in drawing district lines—the Republicans are counting on the census figures to increase the political power of the suburbs, already a key source of GOP strength. "It can't help but help us," said one party official.

Democrats also see the redistricting as crucual, and that's why the party's national committee is launching its nationwide, coordinated effort to elect more of their candidates to state legislatures in 1970.

The Democratic national chairman, Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, has handed the job to Mark Shields, director of campaigns and political organization for the committee.

Marginal Districts

Shields' battle plan, more than a year in advance of the elections, involves two steps. The first, already under way, is a study of the last election's legislative races to identify marginal districts—those decided by less than 5 per cent of the vote.

Republican-held legislative districts on that list will be the target, with the emphasis on major states whose legislatures appear within Democratic reach.

Once these key districts are selected, Harris will guide state and local party leaders in shaping a candidate recruiting plan to find attractive challengers for the Republican incumbents.

The search for candidates to challenge incumbents is likely

Students Protest

Harvard Has Bloody Clash

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — More than 400 policemen swept 200 protesters out of Harvard's revered University Hall today in a bloody clash that left 30 persons hurt and about 200 under arrest.

The helmeted officers, some swinging clubs, stormed through a mass of students to get inside the hall which had been seized Wednesday by youths protesting arvard's Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

Historic Harvard Yard was alive with turmoil. Whistles, yells, jeers and curses reverberated through the area as police, in tight formations, swept back and forth in skirmish platoons.

Bottles and other objects were hurled at police, some from neighboring buildings.

Many of those arrested were carried bodily from the hall and thrust into police wagons.

Most of the police withdrew within an hour after the rush on the hall.

"Pusey Must Go"

As the officers pulled back, more than 1,000 young people surged through the Yard to the steps of Memorial Church, where they shouted "Seig Heil," "On strike, shut it down," and "Pusey must go."

The last was a reference to Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president.

The number of those inside University Hall had dwindled to about 100 during the early morning hours, but one student leader said the figure swelled to between 150 and 200 with word that police were arriving.

Colin Leinster, education editor for Life magazine, was among those injured. Leinster said he "was clubbed from behind by State Police" as he stood taking notes on the steps of University Hall.

"I spent two years in our Saigon bureau and never got a scratch," he said. "I've just been back here a month."

Another of those injured was David Geddes, a Harvard freshman.

"I was standing on the top row of steps when the police came in from the side," Geddes said. "They started piling in and came over the edge of the steps with those big baseball bat sticks. One of them clubbed me on the head and I fell down the stairs, getting clubbed all the time."

Move Smoothly

The police moved into the Yard smoothly, and within minutes formed a large rectangle in the Tercentenary Theatre, that portion of the yard traditionally used for graduation ceremonies.

They advanced on the hall quickly, driving up the steps and inside in a matter of seconds.

Later, after the bulk of the police force withdrew, a fight broke out between several dozen students and about 30 Cambridge policemen.

The students broke ranks and ran as the police, standing back to back in a tight circle, began lashing out with their clubs. One student was left face down in the grass.

The takeover of the hall was led by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

They carried one dean out bodily, and ejected several oth-

Accord Possible, Nixon Tells Reds

Cites Continued Strength of NATO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today the Western allies stand ready—"as conditions change"—to turn the "fist" of defense "into a hand of friendship" toward the Soviets and their allies.

At the same time Nixon, in a policy speech for the 20th anniversary conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers, offered a three-point plan for tightening political coordination among the 15 NATO nations.

He proposed:

—Periodic meetings of NATO deputy foreign ministers "for a high-level review of major, long-range problems before the alliance."

—Creation of a special political planning group to "address itself specifically and continually to the longer-range problems we face."

—Formation of "a committee on the challenges of modern society ... to explore ways in which the experience and the resources of the Western nations could most effectively be marshalled toward improving the quality of life of our peoples."

In this connection, Nixon said the Western alliance as it enters its third decade needs not only a strong military defense but also "a more profound political dimension to shape a strategy of peace" and a "social dimension" in which the allies would pool their skills to meet social problems.

The formal anniversary ceremony was held in the same Constitution Avenue hall where the alliance against the Soviet threat was created in the Cold War days after World War II.

Now the foreign ministers are weighing what might be done to improve East-West relations and what response might be made to the Warsaw Pact's call last month for an Eas - West conference on European security.

Nixon did not refer directly to the proposal issued by the Communist counterpart of NATO in a Budapest communique March 17. But he recalled the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower had spoken of need for unity in addressing the NATO ministerial group 10 years ago.

Eisenhower had noted there is not much strength in one finger of a hand but "when five fingers are balled into a fist, you have a very considerable instrument of defense," Nixon recalled.

"We need such an instrument of defense; the United States will bear its fair share in keeping NATO strong," Nixon added.

"All of us are also ready, as conditions change, to turn that fist into a hand of friendship," he said.

"Living in the real world of today means unfreezing our old concepts of East versus West, while never losing sight of great ideological differences," he explained.

Looking at NATO with what he termed hopeful realism, he warned against a stereotype view rating other nations as good or bad and against "wishful thinking" that a little better communication is enough to bring about international brotherhood.

He said NATO today in the real world stands strong but challenged and he reaffirmed what he listed as these five fundamentals:

—"NATO is needed; and the American commitment to NATO will remain in force and remain strong ..."

—NATO succeeded in it original defense purpose and must adapt to new conditions of success with new bonds of unity, "with less of the original cement of fear."

—In future years the mere symbol of Western cooperation will not be enough. There must be substance.

—Having learned to concert their military forces, the allies must now devise "better means of harmonizing our policies."

—NATO is by nature more than a military alliance "and the time has come to turn a part of our attention to those nonmilitary areas in which we all could benefit from increased cooperation."

The conference opened today with ministers talking guardedly about East-West cooperation —something thought impossible at the alliance's formation two decades ago.

Huge Cutbacks Are Confirmed For Job Corps

Sen. Nelson Claims Government Saving Will be $100 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has confirmed plans for massive cuts in the Job Corps program, an action likely to stir some bitter congressional opposition despite an apparent effort to soften the blow.

A department spokesman Wednesday night confirmed earlier reports that 65 Job Corps centers will be shutdown.

Among the Job Corps centers reportedly scheduled for closing is Clam Lake's in Wisconsin.

The spokesman did not estimate the savings, but Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said they would amount to more than $100 million, a figure reported last week.

The Labor Department spokesman said an official announcement would be made Friday.

Daytime Training

At the same time the administration will propose setting up 20 to 30 "skill centers" near city slums to provide daytime vocational training, unlike the full-time residential Job Corps centers. Dropping of the 65 centers will result in displacing about half of the current 35,000 enrollees.

President Nixon announced Feb. 20 that effective with the end of the fiscal year June 30 he was ordering the Job Corps and the preschool Head Start program transferred out of the Office of Economic Opportunity with the Job Corps going to the Labor Department and Head Start to Health, Education and Welfare.

The closings presumably could not be made until after that date, giving Congress time to block transfer from OEO of the two showpiece programs.

Hearings Planned

Nelson's Senate antipoverty subcommittee has scheduled a hearing for April 18 and the House Education and Labor Committee plans to resume its hearings into the whole antipoverty program April 21.

Education and Labor chairman Carl Perkins is an outspoken opponent of transferring either Job Corps or Head Start into a line agency and has vowed to block the move.

"We're going to put Head Start and the Job Corps back in OEO," he said flatly in an interview March 15. "And we're going to repeal the provision giving the President authority to make transfers out of OEO without congressional approval." He also indicated last week the move to slash the Job Corps centers is an attempt to gut the program.

The Kentucky Democrat said Wednesday the administration was "throwing thousands of boys and girls to the dogs."

The Job Corps cutbacks were ordered by the White House after the Labor Department proposed a more modest reduction of 22 centers.

Mississippi Keeps Rising At La Crosse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rising Mississippi River led to evacuation of flood plain residents in La Crosse Wednesday, but officials swiftly insisted that the action does not indicate a serious flood problem for the city.

Bob Shroeder, city public works director, said La Crosse is nearing completion of the levees it designed against an 18-foot flood crest, and should have no trouble handling the 16-foot crest forecast for April 23.

The city, hard hit by floods in 1965 (water rose past the 12-foot flood stage four years ago today), expected to have about seven miles of levees completed by tonight, Schroeder said.

The members of nine families who were being moved Wednesday from their homes are residents of islands and other flood-plain features outside the protection of La Crosse's levees.

La Crosse is estimated to have invested $185,000 in flood defenses, which could prevent $12 million damage should water get as high as had been forecast March 3.

But the northland snow expected to produce the flood-making runoff has melted gradually, and most Wisconsin communities no longer expect to have trouble.

Combat Deaths Dip Sharply

SAIGON (AP) — American, South Vietnamese and enemy combat casualties dropped last week to the lowest level in the first six weeks of the Viet Cong's spring offensive, the U S and South Vietnamese commands announced today.

The allied announcements said 222 U.S. troops, 246 South Vietnamese soldiers and 3,220 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in action.

Military analysts said one reason for the sharp drop in fighting was that a virulent strain of malaria is hitting the enemy troops in South Vietnam and they are having difficulty getting the medicines to curb it.

U. S. Army doctors said a type of malaria known as falciparum has reached epidemic proportions in some North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units and has "seriously impaired their combat effectiveness."

Despite the sputtering of the Viet Cong offensive, now in its 47th day, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese command said "We don't think the enemy offensive is over."

The malaria situation among the enemy was reported by an Army medical team which said each month "approximately 10 per cent of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are ill with malaria, and the average time lost from duty is seven to 10 days per month for each case."

The American doctors said the North Vietnamese had brought the falciparum strain of malaria down the Ho Chi Minh trail, and the rate of the disease in some units has ranged from 50 to 100 per cent.

"In some units, the mortality rate of those afflicted has exceeded 3 per cent," the joint statement said.

"Of a total of 208 captured North Vietnamese soldiers being treated at a U.S. Army hospital at Long Binh, 28 were suffering from the malady, 10 others were believed to have it, and all the others were confirmed carriers of falciparum malaria."

1,200 Routed by Midwest Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The surging Big Sioux River caused evacuation of a large industrial-residential area in Sioux Falls, S.D., today and forced the city's biggest plant to close.

In Minnesota, Gov. Harold LeVander requested President Nixon to declare 58 of Minnesota's counties major disaster areas and thus make them eligible for flood relief funds.

Dry and cooler air moved into the nation's midsection while floods fed by melting snow and rain routed more than 1,200 persons from their homes.

A 100-foot break occurred in a dike in the Riverside district of Sioux Falls. The dike plugged itself later, but hopes of saving it were abandoned and the area was sealed off.

Families Flee

Fifty families in the threatened area of 18 square blocks began to move out before dawn. Some left only with possessions they could carry in cars or trucks.

The John Morrell Packing Plant, employer of 2,500 workers and the largest business in the city of 70,000, ceased operations. The adjacent stockyards also shut down, and its livestock was removed in trucks.

Joe Vanderloo, Minnehaha County Civil Denfense director, said flood fighters gave up attempts to maintain the dike after eight hours of effort.

"We dumped in more than 100 tons of rock," he said. "We threw in car bodies and anything else we could lay hands on. But it was undermining faster than we could fill it up."

The Minnesota counties covered in the governor's bid for federal disaster aid are in the western half of the state. Earlier, he had signed an executive order declaring the entire state a disaster area and implementing extensive flood relief through several state agencies.

Seventy-five families left their homes in Windom, a community in southwestern Minnesota on the west fork of the Des Moines River.

Debate Over DDT, Coho Becomes a Federal Case

MILWAUKEE (AP) — While debate raged in the Wisconsin Legislature Wednesday over the impact of pesticides on man's environment, the government continued its Lake Michigan salmon seizure with officials preparing to defend their action at a meeting today in Washington, D.C.

A campaign by Wisconsin conservationists to halt the use of DDT reflecting similar efforts by Michigan interests and by congressmen, ran into more opposition from farmers and pesticide manufacturers during a hearing before the Assembly's Agriculture Committee in Madison.

The government, meanwhile, was confiscating 6,060 pounds of Coho salmon which had been stored in a Milwaukee warehouse.

Acts on Complaints

The government, having seized 3,230 pounds of Coho March 28, has acted on complaints by the Food and Drug Administration that the fish had been contaminated by pesticides accumulating in Lake Michigan.

Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, had agreed to meet today in Washington with health and conservation officials from Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois after Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., accused the FDA of "pure speculation" about the extent of the salmon health hazard.

The salmon, caught off the Michigan shore, had been destined for distribution in Wisconsin and Michigan by a Michigan firm.

The two states have been planting Coho in Lake Michigan tributaries in hope of creating a new game fish population.

The government action not only disturbs promoters of the game fish experiment, it helps dramatize what farmers say is a campaign to deprive them of effective chemical weapons against pests.

Harmful to Human

The FDA said DDT levels in the Coho may be high enough to harm humans who eat the fish. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and other congressmen are seeking a ban on use of DDT.

The federal-level activity is being watched closely in Madison, where legislators are being asked to approve a bill banning DDT at the state level.

The Coho salmon issue was cited during Wednesday's hearing by proponents of the bill as an example of what they call the harm to wildlife to a chemical compound which does not deteriorate.

They said the Peregrine falcon, the bald eagle and other animals are vanishing from Wisconsin because they eat water creatures contaminated with DDT washed by rain into lakes from farms, and from municipalities where DDT is sprayed against Dutch elm disease.

A University of Wisconsin botanist, Dr. Grant Cottam, said birds have been "the first species to be affected, perhaps because they are predators."

"Man too must be classed as a predator," Cottam said, "and it is possible man will be one of the predators eliminated if DDT is used in the future."

85 Per Cent Decline

A UW wildlife ecologist, Dr. Joseph Hickey, said DDT use has declined 85 per cent in Wisconsin in the last decade as farmers turn to more effective pest controls.

But "continued use in the eastern part of the state has contributed to the DDT in Lake Michigan," Hickey said.

A chief engineer for the state's Department of Natural Resources, Lawrence F. Motl, said legislators should consider restrictions on all pesticide compounds which do not deteriorate rapidly after application in the open.

"In the light of all we have learned," Motl told the hearing, "we have concluded that a serious threat is posed by all persistent pesticides, not just DDT."

Motl's department has already restricted the use of DDT on property strictly under its jurisdiction. He said the department cannot wholeheartedly endorse a statewide ban on DDT, however, because it might lead to a false public sense of security, leaving other equally dangerous pesticides still on the market.

National Level

He also said that if legislators "are going to ban DDT and obtain constructive results, it has to be done on a national level."

Opponents of the bill included William Kasakaitas, legislative counsel for the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation.

"We are courting economic disaster by depriving Wisconsin farmers of the means to protect their crops and keep the quality of their food productions competitive with those produced in other states," Kasakaitas said.

DDT, he said, is the "aspirin of pesticides. Both are inexpensive, well-known compounds. Both are toxic if used incorrectly."

An entomologist representing Rawlins Co. said DDT is the best weapon against rodents.

Robert Ackerly of Washington, D.C., representing the National Agricultural Chemicals Association, told the hearing that the world's biggest user of DDT is the United Nation's World Health Organization.

The National Academy of Sciences is preparing a report of studies of DDT, he said, and "we're going to implement its recommendations whatever they are because we respect the scientists."

Motl estimated there are 100 pesticides which remain as chemically persistent as DDT.

Creation of Agency

He called for creation of an agency to "continuously study these problems," describing it as preferable to banning DDT alone and then waiting to see if other pesticides are found to be equally harmful.

An assistant secretary of the state Agriculture Department, Arthur R. Kurtz, was another opponent of "a complete ban on DDT except under extraordinary circumstances."

He said "information from the Natural Resources Department's DDT hearings is incomplete. Singling out a specific pesticide for a complete ban is unsound."

The department conducted hearings recently in response to wildlife groups' appeals for a DDT prohibition. The department had said existing law would allow it to act without further legislative authorization only in cases of water pollution.

The executive secretary of the Wisconsin Canners and Freezers Association, Marvin P. Verhulst, said DDT is only one of about 750 pesticides registered with the state.

"By passing this bill," he said, "the legislature is putting itself in a position whereby it may have to consider 749 additional bills relating to other individual registered pesticides."

First to Prohibit

The bill is being sponsored by several assemblymen. One of them, Norman Anderson, D-Madison, said it could make Wisconsin the first state to prohibit DDT.

That, however, would not dissuade him from amending the measure to include other pesticides, Anderson said, or to allow the use of DDT in an emergency.

Anderson said he and other legislators are most concerned with the broad impact of pest control.

"There is no place on earth today that is free from DDT," he said. "We are making extinct certain forms of life. Obviously, we cannot control what states around us do, but we can take the first step."

Another sponsor of the bill, Assemblyman Lewis Mittness, D-Janesville, said DDT has a potential "doomsday" impact.

"Man is on the basis of slowly committing suicide," he said.

A wildlife professor at Stevens Point State University, Frederick Baumgartner, said man is "daily eating foods with measurable quantities of DDT."

License Plate Thief Picked Wrong Victim In Police Detective

Jerome Unke, 33, Germantown, made a bad choice when he decided to steal a set of license plates for his auto last Dec. 12.

He took a set belonging to an Appleton Police Department detective, Ronald Soper.

Unke pleaded guilty to the theft charge Wednesday and was fined $50 and costs or 12 days in jail.

The court was told that Unke, who lived in the same apartment building as Soper last December, took the license plates shortly after they were delivered by a mailman.

Germantown police later located an abandoned auto bearing Soper's license plates.

Title Insurance Faces Probe

Industry Disputes Claim That Americans Are Overcharged

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators looking into the costs of buying and selling homes are converging from two directions on the title insurance industry.

They want to know if premium rates have been set in violation of antitrust laws, and how titling costs borne by buyers and sellers of real estate relate to insurers' profits, loss payouts and operating costs.

So far, investigators have run into a lack of industry - wide statistics and a bewildering maze of local practices. But one investigator said indications are "that the American home-buyer is being overcharged $50 million annually for title insurance."

A title industry spokesman disputed that claim. He said the business is misunderstood by the public and that an investigation might be a good way to bring it into the light.

Title insurance is designed to financially protect the homeowner and mortgage lender against the chance that title to their property will be contested because of old liens, back taxes or the return of missing heirs.

Hearings Due

A preliminary inquiry into the industry's operations already is being conducted by staff members of the Senate Banking Committee and the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee.

The Banking Committee expects to hold public hearings in early summer. Its second-ranking Democrat, Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin, earlier asked the Federal Reserve Board to investigate title insurance premiums as part of its responsibility in administering the new truth-in-lending law. The board refused.

"The latest authoritative data we have indicates that the loss ratio for title insurance companies was about 1.7 per cent," Proxmire said. "This means for every $100 that the title insurance companies take in in premiums, they pay out only $1.70 in claims."

Olds to the antitrust and monopoly subcommittee under Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., moved into title insurance as an adjunct to their probe of auto insurance. But they are expected to leave public hearings to the Banking Committee.

Error Claimed

Dean E. Sharp, the subcommittee's assistant counsel, told a meeting of Philadelphia underwriters this month that "preliminary studies indicate that the American home-buyer is being overcharged $50 million annually for title insurance alone."

Title insurance industry spokesmen contend it is erroneous to consider loss ratios in their business in the same way they are considered in automobile or other casualty insurance. They maintain that the bulk of titling fees actually pay for the investigative work to make certain the title is included.

The government itself is a major purchaser of title insurance.

The Federal Housing Administration is currently studying whether it should quit buying title insurance on houses it repossesses and then resells. The study follows a General Accounting Office report that FHA could save $2.7 million this budget year simply by guaranteeing title itself rather than buying insurance.

The GAO checked title searches on one set of 9,000 properties the FHA acquired during 1966. It found that the minor defects in titles had all been corrected for a total expenditure of less than $1,000, but that FHA had paid $687,000 for title insurance on the properties.

National title insurance firms for some years have charged $3.50 per $1,000 of property sale price for an owner's policy and $2.50 per $1,000 for a mortgage lender's policy. A policy protecting both costs slightly more than an owner's policy. A one-time-only premium is paid when the policy is issued.

National Rates

Many title men commonly refer to these rates as the national rates, but others, aware of antitrust implications of rate uniformity, studiously avoid terming them national rates. They acknowledge, however, that uniform rates in practice exist nationally.

The Department of Justice said it has never investigated title insurance rates from an antitrust standpoint. The department, however, has opposed some mergers of title firms on antitrust grounds.

Prof. John Payne of the University of Alabama Law School, a specialist in the field who is compiling figures on home-buying closing costs for the American Bar Association, wrote Proxmire's staff: "I would presume that the national rate is a violation of the antitrust laws."

Rags to Riches to Rags

RENO, Nev. (AP) — In a mansion high on a forested hillside, a tough, proud man talks of a mineral empire and wonders how to pay household bills.

Charlie Steen, the man who discovered a $61-million uranium deposit in the Utah canyons in 1952, is facing bankruptcy action.

And while he stews over his problems, he knocks about in a million-dollar home that costs $2,500 a month to run, borrows from friends and tries to keep things going.

Creditors claim he owes them $6 million. But he has no cash.

By his own estimate he's worth $19 million. But his assets are mostly in the ground, waiting to be pumped or mined, and the Internal Revenue Service has them frozen there because it says he owes the government $1.6 million.

The Steen establishment—house is not an adequate word—commands a hillside view over the Washoe Valley south of Reno. Five pagoda-style spires poke above the pines. The doors are giant slabs of marble.

Inside the ironies appear.

Liquor Disappears

Sweeping back from a kitchen alcove is a row of cabinets that once held a $5,000 liquor stockpile. "Now we're down to the creme de menthe," Steen laments.

A mobile, transparent roof over a plush indoor patio won't slide back properly because the motor needs repair.

Off the master bedroom is Steen's dressing room, with rows of shirt drawers—empty.

Seventeen years ago, Charles Augustus Steen bore into a gray-black bed of Utah ore and became the crown prince of quick wealth in uranium.

"I used to buy 12 or 15 shirts at a time, then wear them until they all wore out," he says. "They all wore out at the wrong time."

His staff of live servants has dwindled to a girl who works part time.

"Had Everything"

Guests can still breakfast at noon, in a formal dining room where a marble floor bridges a garden-fringed pool. But now Mrs. Steen does the cooking.

"It's frustrating as hell," says wife Minnie Lee. "We had everything. We could go to Africa or South America on a day's notice. Now we don't have enough to run the house. We do without a lot."

Steen appealed the IRS action but it triggered a flood of worried creditors and the case went to federal bankruptcy court.

Referee Russell Taylor held hearings in January and has ordered more. He has said he will give Steen considerable freedom to work needed deals.

Steen maintains he is being conspired against by people trying to cheat him of his fortune, that some are trying to portray him as irresponsible and not worth what he claims he is.

He's filed a $5 million libel suit against one group.

"I'm going to survive. After that, I'm going to get even."

There is little subtlety. An old friend recalls: "If Charlie liked you, the sky was the limit. If he didn't—forget it."

Now 49, Steen comes on at first like a quiet high school biology teacher—5-foot-9, balding, bespectacled. He wears old trousers and a wrinkled western shirt.

But he soon jars the image. Steen does not just offer a morning cup of coffee; he rips through a kitchen cabinet, snapping: "Can't find the damned coffee. Can't find anything," and storms off to ask Minnie Lee where it is.

In 1952, Minnie Lee was cooking rabbit and deer meat for their four young sons while Steen drummed up money for prospecting in the desolate, red-rock canyons of southern Utah. They lived in a two-room shack with outdoor plumbing. Steen owed money to the grocery store and anyone else who would float a loan.

Between Jobs

Trained in geology at the Texas College of Mines, Steen had bounced between jobs, spending much of his time in oil exploration. He married, lasted two years with the Standard Oil and Gas Co. in southwest Texas. Then "I was fired for insubordination and blacklisted." Uranium called, and Steen hauled his family to the Utah hamlet of Cisco. The tarpaper shack was a bargain at $15 a month when they found it in April 1952.

Four months of prowling dry canyons turned up nothing. But Steen was convinced uranium lay beneath a big butte that other prospectors had passed by. He got a used drill and started boring for the yellow ore, carnetite.

All the drill sent up was gray-black rock.

One day the drill broke down, and on his way to get repair gear, Steen jokingly put one of his gray core samples next to a friend's Geiger counter.

Ringo.

Massive Deposit

The gray rock was a massive deposit of the rich ore uraninite. Steen guessed his find at $1 million, but underestimated by about $60 million. It was the country's biggest uranium strike and he called it Mi Vida. "My Life." He was 32.

The Steens enjoyed instant wealth, built a mansion in the boom town of Moab, threw frequent bashes, flew friends around the hemisphere in a private air fleet, converted a British naval vessel to a yacht.

Steen won election to the Utah Senate and in 1961 tried to push a liquor-by-the-drink bill through a legislature dominated by the teetotaling Mormon Church.

Support dried up.

"I received a letter from someone who opposed my views," Steen says. "And she said: 'If you don't like to live in this state, why don't you go to Nevada?'

"I took her advice. I resigned from the Utah Senate and drove all night, so if I died that night I would die in Nevada rather than Utah."

By 1962, Steen was expanding his business empire. Mi Vida was sold; Steen's share was $12 million.

With complex interests in oil and mining, Steen decided to diversify into "safer" businesses. He diversified into big trouble.

"When I get out of my field, and have to depend on others," he testified, "I'm a total flop."

Steen said he lost nearly $4 million on an aircraft company, more millions on a cattle ranch, and orange grove a flying service, even a gourmet pickle made from a friend's Yugoslav recipe. The pickle, Steen says, was "wonderful," but lost $200,000.

By 1966, Steen had had enough of "safe" businesses, and "I got rid of the losers." He obtained a financial adviser, R. C. Thomas, and decided to stick to mining. But his money cushion was gone. His assets were tied to the ground and he needed cash to prime the operation. Loans fell through, an eight-month copper strike crippled some of his mining.

Then IRS moved in, and Steen was caught in what he calls "a vicious circle."

He is convinced he will restore his kingdom. But if he lost everything now, he says, he'd go back to prospecting "and be happy as a pig on ice."

Brushing a panel of delicate marble from a mine he values at $100 million, Steen smiles: "I know I'd make another big discovery."

White House Proposals

Millionaires to Keep Tax-Exempt Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conglomerates, foundations and gentlemen farmers are expected to be targets of the Nixon administration's first tax reform proposals.

But millionaires who pay no taxes at all will escape for the time being.

Tax proposals are to be presented to the House Ways and Means Committee next Tuesday with more recommendations to be sent to Capitol Hill in succeeding months.

The Treasury Department has had to rush completion of its initial and limited package. Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has said actual drafting of legislation will begin Wednesday behind closed doors.

Silent on Details

Administration spokesmen have refused to comment on what the package will contain. But it was understood that some attention would be focused on conglomerates, financial empires that evolve from gobbling up other companies.

According to Richard W. McLaren, the Justice Department's top trustbuster, 170 of the 200 biggest mergers consummated last year involved companies that could be termed conglomerates.

The Ways and Means Committee has heard considerable testimony in recent months indicating that tax laws make it easy for conglomerates to grow.

A "farm loss" proposal is expected to put curbs on wealthy people who farm as a hobby—a hobby that can provide tax loopholes.

The administration also is understood to feel that numerous hearings over the years have documented the need for reform of the tax laws applying to private foundations.

While the problem could be approached from many angles, the focus in the past has been mainly on bills that would prevent a wealthy person from creating a private foundation to get for himself the tax breaks open to big charitable trusts.

Although not among the first proposals, the administration is likely to offer eventually—or at least support—some kind of legislation that would close the loopholes through which 21 persons who earned a million dollars or more last year were able to avoid paying any taxes at all.

Consumer Aide Makes Plans to Help Housewife

Virginia Knauer Named to Post by President Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's newly appointed special assistant on consumer affairs, says she hopes American housewives will consider her "their personal spokesman."

Mrs. Knauer, named by Nixon to succeed Betty Furness in the $28,000-a-year post, said in an interview Wednesday night she also intended to stay in her role as "an American housewife."

"I've been married 29 years, and I intend to continue shopping," she said.

As a prime target, Mrs. Knauer said she would seek greater standardization of product sizes.

Mrs. Virginia Knauer

"I've always said that unless a housewife wears bifocals and carries a small computer, it's almost impossible for her to figure out whether she's getting a bargain in a larger size," she said.

Mrs. Knauer cited an example from a recent shopping tour she took through a local food market.

"Special Price"

She said she "found a certain line of foods in 10-ounce and 12-ounce cans, both with the same label and at the same price."

She said she also found a package of food with a "special price" label posted over the original price, which was the same. There is considerable confusion from products packaged in fractions of ounces and pounds, making comparative shopping more difficult, she added.

"The truth-in-packaging law provides for self-regulation by cutting down the number of sizes," Mrs. Knauer said. "I think we should go further and standardize sizes so that the housewife can find out quickly if she's getting a better buy.

"I understand that a great many industries have cut down on the number of sizes, and I'd like to know what industry has to say about truth in packaging."

In Washington earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Knauer said she would "go hopping into supermarkets and anywhere else where consumers feel they need an advocate."

Mrs. Knauer said the poor, uneducated and elderly are prime targets for unscrupulous operators, and that they would be given special attention by her office.

She said she would resign her present position as director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Consumer Protection and establish residence in Washington.

Mrs. Knauer, 54, is married to Dr. Wilhelm F. Knauer, a Philadelphia attorney. They have two children.

North Colorado City Finally 'Wet'

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Voters in this northern Colorado city decided to make the town "wet" Tuesday after 73 years without legal sale of liquor.

By nearly a 2-1 margin, voters approved a charter amendment legalizing sale of liquor after twice turning it down in the past decade.

Edward Nixon Influenced by Federal Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward G. Nixon was appointed to a federal post without his brother's knowledge but decided to withdraw to avoid the possibility of violating a 1967 anti-nepotism law, the White House says.

John D. Erhlichman, the President's counsel, said Wednesday he raised the question with Nixon and Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans after Stans announced the 38-year-old Nixon's appointment as chairman of the Federal Field Committee for Development Planning in Alaska.

Erhlichman said even though it was "by no means clear" that the 1967 law would apply, the President's brother said he would prefer to withdraw.

The $30,000-a-year job involves coordination of federal development project activities for Alaska. It is a subcabinet level job not directly under the President's jurisdiction, although it is a presidential appointment.

The appointment originated in the Commerce Department while President Nixon was in Florida, Erhlichman said, and Stans announced it before processing it through the White House counsel's office because he realized word of it would leak out.

Safeguard Called 'Incredible' Blunder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, a key scientific adviser to Senate opponents of the Safeguard defense program, says the Nixon administration's decision to build the antiballistic missile system is an incredible mistake.

"Security just can't be achieved that way," physicist Lapp said in an interview amplifying on his challenge to the proposed Safeguard ABM system. "It seems to me that this whole business is incredible. What we're doing is building up forces that will provoke the Russians into building up unlimited forces."

Lapp, 51, is a long-time critic of the Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission. He has had a way of turning out to be right.

His latest effort strikes at the roots of the administration's reasoning for deploying the controversial Safeguard—that American nuclear missiles must be protected from a Russian nuclear "first strike."

The position was laid out by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, who told Congress the Soviet Union is building toward a first-strike capability. He based the prediction on reports they are planning to deploy a huge new missile known as the SS9, capable of carrying one massive warhead or, later, three smaller ones.

Destroy U.S.

Laird said this might give the Soviets the capability of destroying the United States before Washington could order retaliation.

In a report prepared voluntarily for senators opposing the Safeguard, Lapp said the SS9 is not intended to give a first-strike capability because even a large-scale attack would not guarantee the Soviets against retaliation.

By 1976, he said, the SS9 probably would be able to deliver 1,000 five-megaton warheads—but 4,000 would be needed to neutralize the American missile force.

To compound his mathematical challenge, he says the Pentagon is guilty of incredible error in "assuming that the Russians would assume that no United States missiles would be fired immediately after it was learned a nuclear attack was under way."

This challenge to the military is the latest in a series that began 20 years ago, when he was teaching nuclear physics at George Washington University.

Then Lapp was making speeches "alerting the American people to the danger of strategic weapons and exposing the danger of such weapons."

But, he said, "I was having difficulty getting my speeches cleared by the Pentagon, so I decided to sever all government ties and go it on my own."

So he hasn't drawn a government or university paycheck for almost 20 years—but hasn't had access to secret material, either.

He's an alert, studious gadabout on Capitol Hill, bird-dogging key hearings and often sitting with reporters at the press tables, willingly letting them pick his brains.

"My research is done nowadays with only a pencil, a piece of paper and a slide rule—plus digging carefully through public documents," he said.

He makes his living mostly writing books—12 so far—and magazine articles, plus lecturing. His projects keep typewriters going in two offices, one of them at his home in Alexandria, Va.

His first book, "Must We Hide?" was written after seeing the nuclear weapons tests at Bikini atoll in 1946 "and getting my first feel for the potential dangers of fallout radiation."

Homemakers Trace History of Wisconsin Indians

BY SALLY NELSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MENASHA — The story of the Wisconsin Indian was told by Extension Homemakers at their East District Council meeting Wednesday at Sabre Lanes.

Women from nine counties, including Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet, Brown, Kewaunee, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, aMnitowoc and Door, presented programs tracing the history of Indians in Wisconsin from before the appearance of white men on the North American continent to today.

Members of the Brown County group told of the decline of Indian population from one million at the time of the landing of Columbus, to one-half and one-quarter million in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, and their rise in population to the half-million mark again in 1960.

The cause of this population decline and rise was attributed to the Indians' inability to conform to European ideas of civilization, his harassment and abuse by white men, and his gradually increasing ability to establish himself in the world today.

Indian Locations

Locations of active Indian communities in Wisconsin were pointed out as including the Bad River community in Northern Wisconsin; Red Cliffs in Bayfield County; the Chippewa settlement at Court Oreilles, near Hayward; the Mole Lake community in Northeastern Wisconsin, the St. Croix band in Polk and Barren counties and the Oneida, Stockbridge and Menominee settlements within the East District borders of the state.

It was also told that over 2,000 Indians live in the Milwaukee area, most of them Menominee, Chippewa and Oneida Indians who have moved to the metropolis area to work.

Our Heritage

Our heritage from Wisconsin's Indians was traced by Calumet County Homemakers. They explained that many of the names of cities, counties and lakes are taken directly from Indian names, such as Ashland, meaning "outstretched beaver," and Shawano, "place in the south."

Many of the world's chief foods were domesticated by Indians on the North American continent, including corn, potatoes, peanuts and squash. Cotton and tobacco also were cultivated by the Indians and skills passed on to the white man.

Persons studying behavinral prblems today are looking seriously at the ways of the Indians before the advent of the white man, the women were told.

Indians believed in living with nature; keeping it in its natural balance as much as possible. Children were raised in a relaxed, yet dignified way, with emphasis on honor.

Other Presentations

In other programs of the series, Kewaunee Homemakers namer prominent Indians of yesterday and today. The Fond du Lac group told about and showed examples of Indian arts and crafts, noting the use of symbols of nature, such as the sun and stars, in their designs.

Dances and music of Indian tribes was described and demonstrated by Sheboygan and Manitowac County women and a history of Indian sports was traced by hmemoakers from Door County.

The problems of Indians today, the abolishment of the reservation system and the results of confinement over several generations, were pointed out by Outagamie County Homemaker representatives.

150 Attended

Approximately 150 Homemakers attended the morning session which was directed by Mrs. Matt Hopp, district chairman. Hosts were members of the Winnebago County Extension Homemakers.

After a noon luncheon, the convention concluded with a talk by Miss Cathaleen Finley, University of Wisconsin, Madison, home economist. Miss Finley told of her work in Wisconsin Indian communities emphasizing the fact the Indians today are a part of our contemporary world and cannot be looked upon or treated as the Indians of a century or more ago.

Alligator Fan Proves Minority of One

BY ERMA BOMBECK

"That's a rotten shame," said my husband putting aside the paper.

"What's a rotten shame?"

"That thousands of alligators are being poached each year in the Everglades."

"How else would you cook an alligator?" I asked.

"That's not funny," he said. "If it keeps up there won't be an alligator left."

"Maybe they can replace them with computers."

"Good Lord, woman," he barked. "Have you no feelings at all? You remember how we all took that trip through the Everglades last month. You couldn't help but be impressed."

I remembered the trip well. We had just driven several hundred miles out of our way to see the Okefenokee Swamp because Daddy wanted to see where Pogo and Albert live. Our daughter was reading Mad magazine, one son was spitting out the window in an attempt to determine gravity speed while the second son was working a tooth loose to cash in before we hit the next souvenir shop.

We arrived at the Everglades a little after noon. "Aren't you excited," grinned my husband. "This is the best time of the year to see all the animals out roaming about in their natural habitat. What's the matter? You seem subdued."

"I just hate to get my hopes up," I yawned.

Less than ten minutes from the tourist building, we spotted our first alligator in a large water hole . . . then a second . . . third, etc. etc.

"Would you look at this! Take a long look, they're becoming scarce."

"I've been sick ever since I found out I missed the dinosaurs," I sighed.

"Mother! Where are the kids. I want them to see this."

"One is putting on eye make-up in the restroom, one is blowing into his coke bottle and the other is still working on his tooth."

"Well, get them out here. This is unbelievable."

We spent six hours in the Everglades. I haven't seen my husband so ecstatic since Gentle Ben answered his fan letter with a personally autographed picture.

"Yep, it's a rotten shame," he repeated.

"What's a rotten shame?" asked one of the boys.

"That thousands of alligators are being poached each year in the Everglades."

"How else would you cook 'em?" our son asked.

"That did it!" Dad shouted, "I was going to take everybody to see the tidal bore at New Brunswick this summer, but you blew it!'

I have a feeling he'll forgive us.

CARE's Mother's Day Idea a Midwest Product

MILWAUKEE — Now in its third year, CARE's Mother's Day idea is still growing, its effect becoming world-wide. The special tribute plan delivers only a CARE notice to "Mother," but at the same time aids the world's hungry children. It happens when her name and address is sent with a contribution to CARE. Last year, 10,000 American women learned they had been honored in this way and there will be more this year.

Contributors' Idea

The idea originated with the agency's midwest office in Milwaukee. "Contributors thought up this idea, we didn't," says Harold Gauer, Midwest Regional Director. "People sent packages to relatives in Europe years ago. Now, they help people they don't know, in the "have-not" areas of Latin America, Asia and Africa, where hunger remains the root of all evil," he said. "To share the pleasure of giving, donors began to ask that "mother," "mother-to-be," godmother, etc., be notified of contributions in their behalf."

This year, the CARE system provides a notice card with the donor's name signed in it, mailed to the address of all Mother's Day gift designees. The gift with "the thought that counts" can be arranged now, to honor mothers at home and spread Mother's Day love around the world. The CARE office is at 125 E. Wells St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202.

Son Wants Mom, Dad to Quit Smoking

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently Mom got out of the hospital after a serieous case of pneumonia. She was hospitalized last year for a heart attack. Mom is coughing her head off this very minute and she knows darned well why. She smokes like a chimney — against doctor's orders.

I'm a boy 17 and I will never smoke as long as I live. My sister, 15, has also made the decision. Seeing Mom cough herself purple in the face and nearly go into convulsions is lesson enough for us. But it hasn't made her stop.

The day Mom go out of the hospital she said she would quit smoking if Dad did. Dad told her, "No deal." He enjoys smoking and is in good health. He refuses to give it up.

If Mom doesn't quit smoking pretty soon, Ann, she's going to cough herself into the cemetery. Should we beg Dad to stop? — A Son

Dear Son: Your mom is playing a game called, "It's All Your Fault — Look What You Made Me Do."

Yes I believe your dad should quit smoking. First, it would be good for him and help him stay in good health. Second, your mother would then be forced to accept full responsibility of her smoking (no scapegoat to blame it on.) And third — if your mother does cough herself into her grave, your dad won't be tortured by guilt.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to understand the convolutions of the warped mind. Will you please explain why some folks who are downright rich insist on crying poor mouth and talk as if they don't have a dime?

This seems utterly ridiculous — especially when they live in a mansion, drive two expensive cars, keep hired help on the place and travel all over the world. What's with these kooks? — Peek-A-Boo

Dear Boo: Some well-to-do folks have the crazy notion that people of means are supposed to behave in a special way and they don't feel equal to it. So, they try to disavow the label. Of course it's phony, but not as bad as the newly rich who attempt to overwhelm, impress and knock everybody's eyes out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think about a woman (divorced) who sends flowers to herself every few weeks and makes up tender and romantic cards which she displays by the flowers for her friends to see?

When asked who sent the lovely flowers, she demurely says, "A secret admirer."

The girl who does the billing for the florist told us about this so we aren't guessing. May we have an opinion? — The Bridge Club

Dear Club: I think the woman is pitiable. I also think the florist's bookkeeper has a very big mouth.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

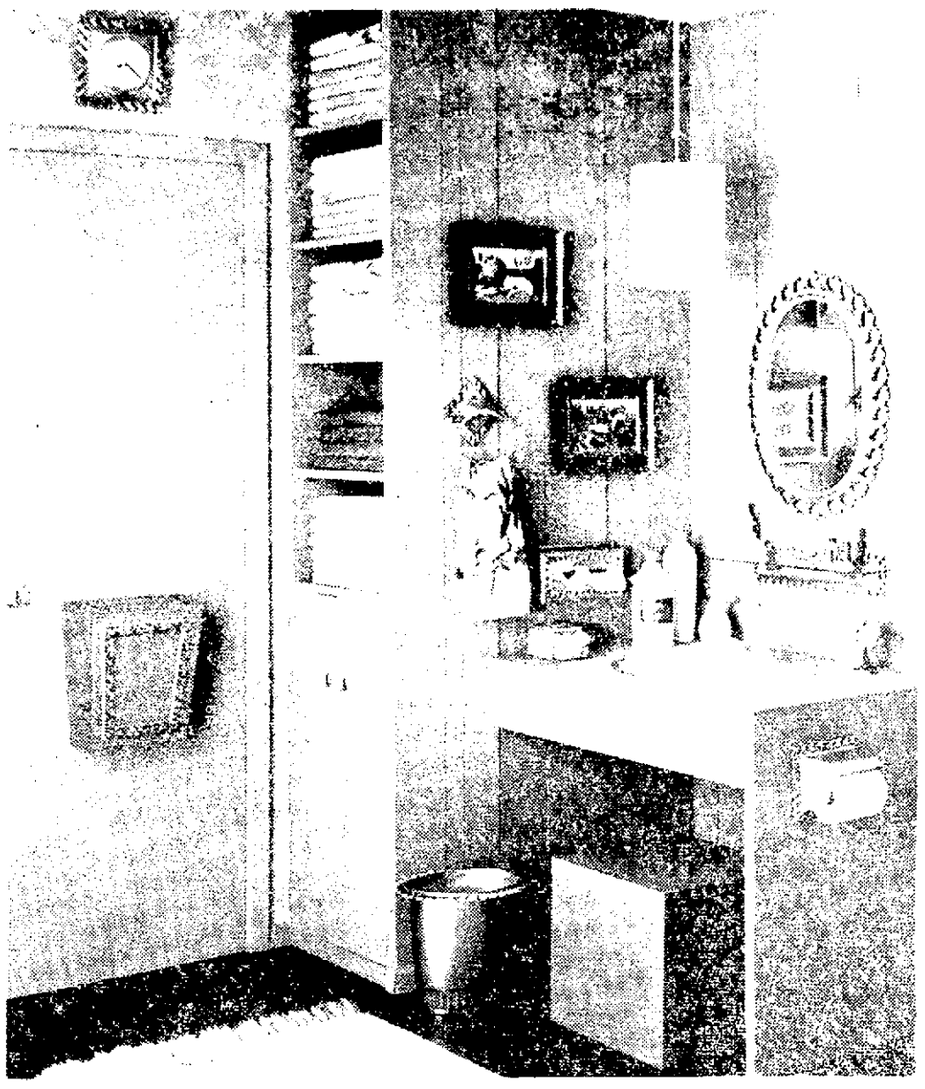
Bathroom Decor Runs Color Spectrum



The Designer Painted the rough barn-siding of the walls, used an unusual wallpaper and furniture-styled accessories for a fresh as today look in this bathroom that completely sheds the old clinical look.

Grandma's stylishly-stout figure, evidence of the well-fed look, once stood for affluence. That was back when the pristine-white bathroom also meant status. Today bathroom decor runs the full color spectrum, with no hue taboo.

It didn't happen overnight. Rustic facilities of yesteryear gave way, first, to the all white, sterile look. And for good reason. Later, after a hesitant testing of color with lukewarm pastel-pretties, the baby-tints enjoyed a vogue. It was a natural evolution, yet daring for its day. But so was the exposed ankle.

Color in Profusion

Now, there is a different beat! Today colors are vibrant used in profusion. From fashion to decorating, brilliant colors permeate the consciousness, both blatantly and subliminally. Color is approached with a spirit of adventure, the bathroom no exception. In fact, one of the easiest and most exciting rooms in which to explore color is the bath. There, space is small and the impact intensified. Change is quite inexpensive and can be accomplished with a switch of shower curtain, carpet or a refreshing coat of paint, a room in which to dare, to venture forth for a new color experience.

With a "Lilliputian safari" as the theme, A.I.D. designer John Elmo conceived one bathroom in zingy, today colors combined to intrigue the younger generation. With definite method to his 'madness,' Mr. Elmo targeted as his primary decorative objective, an atmosphere compatible to the young personality. Incorporated in his planning was a simple step-stool, a thoughtful accoutrement which undeniably informs a child that his needs are being considered. The same message is communicated when the magazine rack and soap dishes are placed within easy reach, enlarging upon the small child's world.

Soft Underfoot

Glenoit's washable carpeting in lemon yellow was the start of the Elmo designer this sunny bathroom color scheme. Of 100 per cent polyester, the fluffy piles is soft to little feet, so often without slippers, and ideal for use in bath and dressing rooms.

Complementing the velvet plush carpet, a bittersweet tangerine-tone was picked for the painted wall and shower curtain. Standard white bathroom fixtures are an excellent accent to any color scheme. No bath is complete without personal accessories, as serviceable as they are pretty. Matching mirror, waste basket, towel holders and other accessories in moss green provide attractive wall 'hang-ups' — put on with their own adhesive backing in a matter of minutes. These accessories are available in a selection of colors and for little money can help transform a nondescript bathroom into a highly personalized one. For dressing room and bedrooms, too, they add up to built-in convenience.

Sources for Ideas

Decorative themes can be borrowed from any source. One concept, the use of brightly-painted rough barn-siding for the walls, dramatically departs from the stereotype and offers a very fresh image.

A deep navy floor was sparked with a verdian green paint applied to the barn-siding, with cardinal red, desert pink, antique gold and bristol blue combined in a selection of towels and accessories to further intensify a strong color story. There is no limit, no rules. Just instinct and taste. Unorthodox materials and colors combine to present originality and impart distinction. In this age that refuses to be restrained by archaic laws, fresh ideas abound ready to be adapted in a highly personalized fashion, the true mark of the today look.

Assemblywoman Engaged to Wed

MADISON (AP) — Wearing a new diamond ring, state assemblywoman Carolyn Blanchard, R-Edgerton, said Wednesday she has become engaged to Malcolm Allen of Evansville.

Mrs. Blanchard, widow of late Assembly speaker David Blanchard, said no date has been set for the wedding.

1 Notrump Difficult To Achieve

A contract of one notrump, although not dramatic, is the most difficult of all contracts. The opponents usually have almost as much high-card strength as your side, and they strike the first blow with their opening lead.

Today's hand, played last month in the annual contest for the Vanderbilt Cup, shows a typical tense struggle for the seventh trick.

Ira Rubin, declarer, won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts. He could expect to win three spades, two hearts and one diamond, but his seventh trick was much harder to find.

Planning an end-play from the very beginning, Rubin led a diamond from dummy and allowed East to hold the trick with the king. Diamonds was the only neutral suit, and Rubin planned to deprive the enemy of safe diamond exits.

East returned his singleton club, and Rubin played low. West won with the nine of clubs and returned his other heart. Rubin played low from dummy, and East won with the jack.

Returns Spade

East could safely return a low spade, and West's jack forced out dummy's king. Now Rubin cashed the queen of spades and the ace of diamonds and got out with the ten of diamonds, forcing the opponents to yield the seventh trick.

If East won the third round of diamonds with the queen he would have to lead a heart or a spade. Either play would give dummy a free finesse.

If East dumped his queen of diamonds on declarer's ace, permitting West to win the third (and fourth) round of diamonds, the defenders could take only two clubs — not enough to defeat the contract.

While all this was going on, West would then be obliged to lead a club. This would give South a club trick. one heart, three diamonds and

'een Discussion Set for Saturday

KIMBERLY — Students from imberly High School and St. ohn High School, Little Chute, ive been invited to attend a rogram at 1:30 p m. Saturday learn how they can be volved in service through Red oss.

The idea for the meeting iginated when Barbara Welch, junior at Kimberly High hool, attended a Red Cross eadership training center last mmer. During one of the nter's sessions, Barbara arned that high schoolers ac- e in Red Cross programs in her cities would form a cara- n and visit other areas to ild interest in volunteer serv- e. After discussing this possi- ity with school authorities d Mrs. Kay Kirchberg, execu- e secretary of the Outagamie unty Red Cross, a date for e meeting was set.

The program will include a m produced by high school idents showing their Red oss activities, slide presenta- ns and small discussion oups. According to Barbara, ravan members who will be ming from Menasha, Sheboy- n and Milwaukee don't intend talk to other teen-agers; ther, they want to get them lking about what they could as Red Cross volunteers in eir schools and for community encies.

The meeting is open to all nior and senior high school idents. Reservations can be ade by contacting Miss Welch Kimberly High School.

VC Blames U.S. for Secret Talk 'Rumors'

PARIS (AP) — A representative of the Viet Cong accused the United States today of spreading rumors about private Vietnam peace talks in an effort to calm antiwar sentiment at home.

Than Buu Kiem, spokesman for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, told the 12th full-scale session of the Vietnam peace talks, that the reports of private meetings were part of a "perfidious maneuver" to make the public believe the Nixon administration has a program for a peaceful settlement.

The United States continued to hammer at the presence of North Vietnamese forces in the South and to seek discussions on a mutual withdrawal of forces. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge insisted that the withdrawal of the North Vietnamese "military and subversive forces" was one of the crucial issues to be dealt with.

Private Contacts

Kiem did not specifically deny that private contacts are taking place in Paris and elsewhere. But his continued attack on secret talks dimmed the likelihood of any such discussions soon—at least as far as the Viet Cong is concerned.

"The U.S. administration wants to conceal the truth," Kiem said, "but during the last few days hundreds of thousands of people, including a great number of GI's, massively demonstrated in tens of American cities demanding that the U.S. government end the war and immediately bring U.S. troops home."

North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy took a similar line, declaring that President Nixon's Vietnam policy is "aimed at soothing the criticism" against the administration by those who want a quick settlement.

"This is a very perfidious trick used by the Nixon administration to continue its aggression," he said, adding that the key issue is total U.S. troop withdrawal.

Resume Thursday

The meeting lasted four hours and 20 minutes. The sessions will resume next Thursday.

Lodge told the North Vietnamese that their demand for the unilateral withdrawal of U.S. forces "is not realistic." He presented detailed evidence to back his contention that North Vietnamese forces were in the South in substantial numbers. He cited specifically the 95th and 101st regiments of the North Vietnamese army.

"For our part," he said, "we have made clear our willingness to begin the withdrawal of U.S. and allied forces simultaneously with the withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces."

It was the third straight week that the United States hit at the North Vietnamese presence in the South and in neighboring Laos and Cambodia. Lodge noted this and said for a lasting settlement North Vietnam must be willing "to respect the territorial integrity of its neighbors and to respect international frontiers and demarcation lines."

Restore DMZ

"That is why," he added, "that the United States has called for the restoration of the demilitarized zone. That is why the United States has called upon North Vietnam to respect the 1962 Geneva agreements on Laos and the territorial integrity of Cambodia.

"In addition, the United States has proposed that prisoners of war be released at the earliest possible date.

"These are specific and concrete proposals which are based firmly on the real facts of the situation. If you are truly interested in bringing the war in Vietnam to an early end, you should join us in a serious discussion of these proposals."

South Vietnamese Representative Pham Dang Lam accused the Communist side of continuing the war on "orders of your masters in Peking" and warned that stalling for time "does not bring any advantages to your side."

Citing the rejection by Hanoi and the Viet Cong of all allied proposals "without even discussing them," Lam said:

Not Sincere

"Your actions as well as your words force everyone to conclude that although you are sitting at the meeting table you are not sincerely seeking peace through negotiation."

"These days, your side still demands a unilateral withdrawal of allied forces from South Vietnam all the while still wishing to preserve your own aggressive and subversive forces.

"Your negative attitude can only be explained in two ways. One is that you are sitting at this table but still cherish the illusion of still solving all problems by force. The other is that you are following the orders of your masters in Peking and are continuing the war in order to expand Communist power in Southeast Asia."

ers including the dean of the faculty Franklin L. Ford.

The demonstrators issued a list of six demands, including the one for abolition of Harvard's ROTC program.

Some of the others were tied to the ROTC demand, while the rest called for a reduction of rents for Harvard-owned buildings and abandonment of what the students described as a plan to tear down houses and apartments for a medical school expansion and construction of the John F. Kennedy Memorial library.

Pusey said in a statement that he could not take the demands seriously.

"How can one respond to allegations which have no basis in fact?" the university president asked.

Pusey then gave the demonstrators an ultimatum—give up their occupation or face arrest. The combined force of State Police and officers from surrounding communities moved into action at 5 a.m., 12 hours after the ultimatum deadline.

After Wednesday's University Hall seizure, about 1,000 students gathered outside the hall. Many jeered those inside, and some carried signs reading 'SDS does not represent Harvard" and "SDS must go."

Democrats Set Sights on 1972 House Elections

to prove very difficult at the legislature level.

But Shields believes it can be done. "You can't ignore the phenomenal number of people who got involved in Democratic politics last year, the new people out of the McCarthy and Kennedy campaigns," he says. "We've got a built-in advantage right there."

Republicans have an advantage of their own. The nine biggest states all are virtually certain to be involved in shifting House representation, and thus in redistricting.

Republicans control both branches of the legislatures in five of them, Democrats in two, with the others divided or leaning toward GOP domination.

The Democrats are working with population projections which anticipate gains of 6 House seats for California, 2 for Florida, and one apiece for Arizona, New Jersey and Texas.

As an adviser dolefully noted in a memo to Harris, Democrats have legislative control in only two of those states, Florida and Texas.

"But the party chieftains in these states have not been noted for their responsiveness to national party leadership," the memo adds.

Other projections in the Democratic dossier indicate that Colorado and Connecticut might also gain one seat apiece as a result of population shifts.

The likely reductions: two seats in Pennsylvania, one each in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Limits Recommended On Medicaid Charges

MADISON (AP)— Limitations on costs charged by doctors to medicaid were recommended Wednesday by the legislature's Joint Finance Committee after chopping $7.8 million for special benefits to persons not immediately qualified for the program.

The committee voted 10-1 to impose a limit of 4½ per cent on the annual increase which doctors, hospitals and nursing care centers could charge for services if they want to remain eligible under the medicaid program.

The medicaid program is expected to cost more than $236 million during the fiscal biennium ending June 30, and is accused of having contributed more than $9 million to the $25.9 million deficit which Gov. Warren P. Knowles said in January he discovered in the state's budget.

Wilbur Schmidt, state secretary of health and social services, told the committee he has reached agreement with many doctors against charging increases to medicaid until after 1970.

The committee also voted 8-5 to eliminate a program which has been serving about 75,000 persons a month, 45,000 of them children and 20,000 of them elderly persons.

The $7.8 million program provides benefits for persons unable to qualify for all medicaid benefits.

The program, designated Group II, is for persons who Schmidt said "can't get the scratch together for medical care, but are just above the cut-off line for full benefits."

Italy Police Target of Protest As Nationwide Strike Is Called

BATTIPAGLIA, Italy (AP) — Italy's big three labor federations called a nationwide strike Friday to protest police action against rioters in this south Italian town Wednesday. The strike call eased tension that had begun mounting again in Battipaglia after word that the toll from the battles Wednesday had risen to three dead and more than 140 injured.

For a time this morning it appeared that the battle would resume between more than 2,000 riot police and angry inhabitants of the town on the coastal plair south of Salerno. But later in the day the riot police began withdrawing to the edge of the town.

The Labor unions agreed to a three-hour work stoppage and accused the police of unwarranted violence. They demanded an investigation of the battle Wednesday.

Angry crowds began gathering soon after dawn in the square before the burned and wrecked town hall, scene of the worst of the fighting Wednesday.

The third fatality was a child who was hit by a police car during the motorized charges against the rioters in the streets Wednesday. The other two dead were killed by gunshot wounds.

As word of the child's death spread through the square, people in the crowd began to shout at the police on guard behind plastic shields.

There were scuffles as the crowd tried to break into the ruined town hall again.

Police with tear gas patrolled the streets, and others stood by at an army barracks just outside town.

The violence Wednesday at Battipaglia brought a new call from Italy's biggest union and its Communist party mentors for disarmament of the police. The General Federation of Labor also urged a wave of protest strikes and demonstrations as "a united adequate response to the tragic police violence."

It was the bloodiest outburst since two striking farmers were killed by police bullets in Sicily last December. That brought on a nationwide rash of strikes and demonstrations and leftist demands that the police be disarmed.

The violence in Battipaglia, about 40 miles southeast of Naples, grew out of a local general strike to protest layoffs at the government tobacco factory in the town of 26,000.

The striking workers, many of them women, set up blockades at rail and road junctions and paralyzed much of the north-south traffic between Naples and the provinces below it.

Then workers and students began rampaging through the streets, looting, setting fire to the city hall and dumping official documents out the window. Violence spread throughout the town, and some 2,000 police were rushed from Naples, Foggia and closer towns.

As the police moved in, the mobs threw rocks and Molotov cocktails at them. It took police more than 16 hours to clear the railroad tracks.

One of the dead was Teresa Ricciardi, 26, a schoolteacher who was struck in the heart by a bullet as she leaned out of a window. Carmine Citro, 19, a student, also was fatally shot.

Police said no order had been given to fire, and it was not clear who was responsible for the deaths.

Meanwhile, a delegation from Battipaglia was in Rome and secured government assurances there would be no reduction of employes in the tobacco factory.

Frank Nikolay Is Successor to David Obey

Wins Democratic Minority Post by Only 24-23 Margin

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A northern Wisconsin lawyer was returned to a ranking position in the Democratic minority of the state assembly Wednesday when he was chosen assistant minority leader to succeed David Obey of Wausau, newly-elected congressman from the Seventh Congressional District.

Assemblyman Frank Nikolay of Abbotsford, 47, edged out Assemblyman Mark Lipscomb of Milwaukee for the position on the second ballot in a closed party caucus by a margin of 24 to 23.

Nikolay is serving his fifth term in the assembly, where he was Democratic majority leader in 1965 and assistant minority leader in 1963. He has held a variety of public offices, including that of U.S. attorney for the Western District of Wisconsin. He is a lieutenant colonel in the Wisconsin National Guard, and once sought his party's nomination for state attorney general, but unsuccessfully.

Nikolay will flank Minority Leader Robert Huber of West Allis, a veteran of 10 terms, in quarterbacking the 47-member Democratic bloc in the legislature's lower house.

The Republican margin of control in the assembly has increased slightly, to 52-47, with the departure of Obey for Washington.

Gov. Warren Knowles could order a special election to fill Obey's former seat representing Wausau, but he is not required to do so by law, and he reportedly is not inclined to do so.

Home Insurance Policy Costs Being Reduced

BY SYLVIA PORTER

You probably don't know it but your homeowner's insurance policy is in the process of its first major overhaul in 12 years. At no cost to you significant new benefits are being added, some "old" benefits are being changed or excluded, a new schedule of deductibles is put into effect, big premium cost savings.

The overhaul was proposed late last year by the Multi Line Insurance Rating Bureau which advises state insurance departments on rates. To date 41 states and the District of Columbia have approved the changes and the remaining states are expected to follow soon. All new homeowners policies and most policy renewals in these states will automatically include the new provisions.

If your policy will expire in the fairly distant future though your best bet may be to have your policy cancelled and rewritten at no extra cost by your insurance agent or broker. In any event check now with your insurance agent to find out whether and how the new rules affect YOU.

Here are the key changes:

(1) You will now be able to elect a higher deductible in exchange for significantly lower premium costs. To illustrate a typical three-year premium with the old $50 deductible used to cost $200. By doubling this deductible to $100 you cut your premium to $180, at $250 you slash it to $160, and with a $500 deductible it will be only $150. But you must inform your insurance agent if you want to take advantage of this provision.

(2) Your coverage for personal property is being automatically increased by 25 per cent — with no hike in your premium — to as much as 50 per cent of your policy's face value. If your house is insured for $30,000 up to $15,000 in losses of personal property instead of $12,000 — could now be covered.

(3) Coverage for theft of the disappearance type — involving loss of property from a known place under circumstances where a probability of theft exists — is being made part of your regular homeowners coverage instead of being available only as an endorsement. This is so even if you cannot prove the theft.

(3) Theft of property from an unlocked car will be covered — if you have surrendered your keys to a garage or parking lot attendant. You'll also be covered for property left in a stolen car which is not recovered within 30 days. Under the old rules you had to prove that a thief broke into your car, an obvious impossibility if your car had been stolen and not recovered.

(4) Coverage is being added at no extra cost to you for personal property while you are in the process of moving to a new home for a 30-day period.

(5) Also added will be coverage for damage to your home or property by self-propelled missiles or space craft, in addition to ordinary aircraft, a gesture to the future in space.

(6) Fees payable for fire department service charges, still being made in many parts of the country, will be raised from $100 to $250 to reflect the rising cost of fighting fires.

(7) You will be able to buy homeowners insurance for a home or other building under construction — including insurance on the building for up to its expected value on completion — as well as liability if you are negligent in certain specified cases.

(8) The limit on losses of jewelry and furs is being slashed from $1,000 per item in any one theft to a total of $500 for all such items. However, you may buy a special endorsement to cover any individual items valued at more than $500.

(9) Liability coverage is being specifically excluded for damage or injury caused — away from your own property — by any recreational vehicles you may own. This includes snowmobiles, motor scooters and go carts but not golf carts you use for golfing.

Tenant Plan Needed to Get Housing Funds

Byrnes Explains the Delay in Housing for Elderly Project

Submission of a tenant assignment plan, needed to comply with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, apparently is holding up Appleton's housing for the elderly project.

Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, reiterated this morning that the Appleton Housing Authority's failure to submit a plan was holding up the two-year-old application. His office contacted Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) officials this week.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., has written city officials Monday with the same information. "Once this is received," he said, "the Appleton application will be processed and a decision made."

Earlier Reminders

Byrnes indicated that he had wired Leon Jensen, housing authority chairman, "advising him to get the plan in at the earliest possible time."

Byrnes said that he could not understand the authority's delay. The housing authority was informed Jan. 31 by letter and March 24 by telephone to get the plan in.

Jensen said the authority had only received forms for the two plans from the Chicago HUD office "within the past month." He could not give the exact date when the forms arrived, but noted it was in with the reams of other forms which also must be filled out for the project.

He said that he had not requested the forms from the HUD office but noted he did not feel they were of special importance.

"It's not that critical," he said.

HUD sent the authority two of the lengthy documents. It must select one to return to HUD. Jensen noted the plans offer two methods or terms for tenant selection, and the Civil Rights portion is only a small part.

"We'll have to study the plans and will adopt one of the two at the next meeting on April 17," Jensen said. He noted it took

Bridges in Fox Valley Cities Given Top Priority in State Construction

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Four Fox Cities area bridge projects are among 24 in Wisconsin which a legislator predicted today would be constructed by 1975.

Assemblyman Willis Hutnik, R-Ladysmith, said that with full-faith and credit bonding by the state, the 24 top priority projects would be built. Voters approved this type of bonding April 1.

The April 1 balloting and the constitutional amendment will allow a change in the current bridge bonding bill to allow direct bonding for bridges, said Hutnik, assembly highway committee chairman.

The highest priority bridges, listed in a State Division of Highways report, include the $1.5 million Memorial Drive span in Appleton; $5 6 million Ninth Street bridge in Menasha; Main Street bridge in Oshkosh; and the U S. 10 bridge at Fremont in Waupaca County, and the Oneida Street bridge in Appleton.

Other projects listed are the State 55 bridge across the Fox River near Kaukauna, which will be part of the proposed expressway, and the Speel and French roads bridge east of Appleton.

The highway division submitted its bridge study in conjunction with proposed legislation to launch a bonding program to accelerate replacement of old and inadequate spans in Wisconsin.

If the bill is changed to allow direct bonding, Hutnik said, about $40 million in state costs for the bridge could be paid directly and the construction industry could finish all the projects in five to six years.

Some of the 24 projects have been started, he said.

Within the top category, plans now call for the highway commission to choose top priority, Assembly Speaker Harold V. Froehlich, R-Appleton, said. Negotiations on the financing of local cost shares and traffic needs will govern, he added.

Top Priorities

Hutnik indicated that attempts will probably be made on the assembly floor to set priorities within the group of 24 and that he agrees with this approach, if emergency needs are considered.

Both assemblyman's statements came at a press conference this morning.

Total bridge needs, according to the highway division, is 79, with a projected cost of $125 million. The present state highway budgeting arrangement could not support such a need.

The division is supporting efforts of highway affairs leaders, including Hutnik and Sen. Reuben LaFave, R-Oconto, senate highway committee chairman, to launch a bonding program for more rapid replacement.

Voters approved a state constitutional amendment April 1 to allow the full-faith and credit bonding by the state, replacing the circuitous device of dummy building corporations, which were used many years.

Listed among the highest priority were Memorial Drive in Appleton, Main at Oshkosh, Ninth at Menasha and U.S. 10 at Fremont. The other three Fox Cities area bridges were listed but not in the highest priority.

The Memorial and Main street bridges would be replacements while the Ninth Street bridge would be new and part of the proposed expressway system.

New bridges on Mason Street in Green Bay and connecting Allouez and Ashwaubenon in Brown County, and at Sturgeon Bay and Marinette also are listed in the highest priority group.

The Mason Street bridge is expected to cost $12 million and the Allouez bridge, $6.3 million.

Unaware Man Wanted

Robbery Suspect's Companion Is Back

A Neenah woman whom authorities believed was with a gunman who held up the Greenville Branch of the First National Bank of Appleton made a surprise appearance at the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department Wednesday afternoon.

The 42-year-old woman told sheriff's investigators and FBI agents she did not know her companion, Edward P. Crotteau, was wanted for the bank robbery until she heard a news broadcast in LaCrosse Wednesday morning.

Crotteau, whose last known address was 408 W. Seventh St., Appleton, was named Tuesday night in a federal warrant charging him with the Tuesday morning bank robbery which is believed to have netted him $12,000.

Still Sought

Crotteau, who lived at 617 Wilson St., Neenah before moving to Appleotn four months ago, is still being sought. Until the Neenah woman turned herself in Wednesday, authorities believed Corlteau might be headed for Alabama with her. The FBI alert, at first issued for nine states, was revised to include all 50 states Wednesday night.

A sheriff's department investigator, said the woman called the department at 1:20 p.m. Wednesday, saying she wanted to talk with authorities.

The woman, who reportedly is separated from her husband, said she stayed at an Appleton area motel Monday night.

She said Crotteau, whom she had known for some time, came to the motel west of the city about noon Tuesday. The Greenville bank robbery occurred about 11:30 a.m. Greenville is about seven miles west of Appleton.

The woman told authorities she and Crotteau, 62, drove to Waupaca, then to Wisconsin Rapids, in separate cars. Crotteau reportedly conducted business in Wisconsin Rapids.

Drove Two Cars

From there, they drove to La Crosse, still in separate cars, the woman said. They stayed in separate motel rooms in La Crosse Tuesday night.

The woman said they were returning from breakfast early Wednesday morning, when she heard the radio news broadcast in which Crotteau was named as the robbery suspect. She said she was alone in her car at the time.

Authorities quoted the woman as saying she told Crotteau she did not feel well. They parted, and she returned to the Appleton area, arriving about noon Wednesday.

The woman told authorities she had no idea Crotteau was suspected of robbing a bank.

Outagamie County authorities believe Crotteau also attempted an armed holdup at the Freedom State Bank about 9 a.m. Tuesday. He walked out of the bank when told that the money was in a time-locked vault.

Show of Unity

Alliance Cities Pledge To Intensify Fight for Relief of Property Tax

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — In a strong show of unity, representatives of 15 of Wisconsin's major cities vowed Thursday to intensify their drive for property tax relief through statewide tax reform.

The Alliance of Cities, its ranks changed last week as a result of local elections, regrouped and elected new officers during a day-long meeting at the Pioneer Inn.

Mayor Wallace Burkee, Kenosha, was elected the alliance president to succeed Otto Festge, Madison; Mayor John Kannenberg, Wausau, vice president, succeeding William Beyer, Racine, and Mayor Donald Tilleman, Green Bay, secretary, succeeding Robert Rand, Manitowoc. Elected to the board of directors were City Manager Robert Quinlan, Beloit; Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee, and City Manager Walter Cane, Eau Claire.

Buckley Post

Mayor George Buckley was retained as treasurer and a member of the executive board.

Burkee recalled that the fundamental reason for forming the alliance was to do something about getting property tax relief.

"We intend to keep our sights on that specific goal, continue to work together and also participate in deliberations on the local and state level in matters concerning our central cities," Burkee said.

More than 40 public officials from central cities throughout the state, including Appleton, Green Bay, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah and Menasha, attended.

Full-Time Aide

Burkee said now that the alliance has regrouped, it will intensify its efforts and also have its full-time executive secretary concentrate on bills and legislative reform pending before the legislature at Madison.

"I feel that the outcome of local elections around the state recently makes it more imperative that we impress upon the legislature the need for tax reform and specifically providing cities with property tax relief," Burkee declared as he assumed the presidency.

Burkee continued, declaring, "We are not just a lobbying group and we intend to go into a lot of areas of government and rely upon each other to accomplish our goals.

Know Problems

"As mayors and city managers of Wisconsin central cities, we know the problems and we will find solutions," Burkee remarked. "We have a just cause and it is obvious that the legislature is already years behind in reforming Wisconsin's tax structure."

"We will not be denied tax reform," Burkee said emphatically," and the Alliance of Cities is the only group that can push it along — not individually — but collectively".

Jurisdiction Altered

Public Works Board Structure Unchanged

Appleton aldermen admitted Wednesday night that a proposal to drop five council members from the board of public works had merit, but they rejected the idea for another year.

Ald. Robert Roemer, (8th) a former mayor serving his second term on the council, said it was time for the group to streamline its method of operations.

He then proceeded to advocate removal of all committee chairman from the now-powerful board of public works and confine its membership to key department heads and appointed city officials.

Department and committee functions were reviewed at the annual informal meeting of the council.

Changes Made

While failing to get the council to alter the makeup of the board of public works, Roemer was successful in getting the aldermen to revise that body's jurisdiction.

In the past it had jurisdiction over all public buildings and grounds, insurance, department of inspections and city planning department

Under the revisions agreed upon Wednesday night, subject to final approval at the annual reorganization meeting Tuesday, the changes would be as follows —Building and grounds, jurisdiction of the commerce-development committee; department of inspections, welfare-ordinance committee; insurance, finance committee; city planner, board of public works; and traffic engineer, public safety committee.

The changes would beef up the duties and authority of the committees, especially the welfare-ordinance committee, and at the same time, the board of public works would perform its regular duties prescribed under state law.

Aldermen Sworn In

Prior to the meeting, five new aldermen were given their oath of office by City Clerk Elden Broehm

They are Alds. Bruce Stutzman (1st), Orville Polzin (4th), Edward Maloney (9th), Clarence A. Mitchell (16th), and Richard Schouten Jr., (19th).

On a side note, Mitchell told a reporter that he had read reports he was being mentioned as one of at least three candidates for the position of council president, but said, "I am not a candidate at this time."

Mitchell said he felt that he would want to serve out his first term and might give consideration to the position during a second term.

Two Homes Entered by Intruders

Late night intruders struck at two more Appleton homes early today.

Mrs. Jerome Fulcer, 151 S Weimer St., told police about 1 15 a.m. today she awoke to find a man with a flashlight near her bedroom. She said the man ran past her and out a back door.

He took a purse belonging to Claudia Metko, who also was at the 151 S. Weimer St address. The purse was found later on S. Schaefer Street, near Lucille Street. Missing were $7, a man's Navy ring, a key, and a small notebook.

Dennis Luebke, 615 N. Oneida St., told police about 1.50 a.m. that he was asleep on a living room couch when he awoke to find a young man walking into the dining room, from the kitchen, with a flashlight

Luebke told police he asked the man "if he could help him." The intruder then fled. Luebke furnished police with a description of the intruder, whom he believed to be about 19 years old.

Luebke's wife's purse was ransacked and a book of blank checks was missing

Burglars got about $50 after breaking into the Sam Malofsky Motor Co, 1850 W Wisconsin Ave., late Wednesday or early today

Detectives said entry was gained by forcing a north door leading into a storage area. Burglars then knocked the panel from a wooden door to gain entry into the garage proper

The money was taken from a cash register on which the cash drawer was pried open. The dial was knocked off a safe, but the safe was not entered, a detective said.

$600,000 Project

Airport Taxiway Work Required If Outagamie Wants Aid From FAA

Outagamie County will not be able to get $313,000 "owed" to it by the federal government for airport land purchases unless it goes ahead with a $600,000 taxiway project

This was the word given to the Outagamie County Board's airport committee this morning by Enoch Anderson, chief of the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) airports branch

Anderson told the committee that because demands for federal money so greatly exceed available funds, the county probably will not be able to get the $313,000 promised to it as a reimbursement for airport land acquisition

Anderson explained that because of the tight money situation in the FAA, money was allocated only for projects of "the highest priority."

The FAA has approved a $294,000 grant for construction of taxiways along the northwest-southeast runway. The county's share of the project amounts to about $377,000, of which $100,000 must be allocated soon

Anderson told the airport committee this morning that if it didn't go ahead with the taxiway project, it would not only lose its $294,000 grant, but the $313,000 which had been promised previously to defray expenses of land purchases

The $313,000 is still the FAA's money, Anderson explained "We can withdraw this land acquisition money because it was programmed to help with the taxiway project," he added

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, who Monday had questioned the airport committee's priorities in going ahead with the taxiway plans rather than building a control tower, was upset over Anderson's statements

Esler said he and other county officials had been misled into believing the county would receive the $313,000 outright with no strings attached when the airport property was purchased about three years ago

Anderson explained that the tight money situation had changed FAA requirements for grants, and that now all funds were assigned on a high priority basis

"You are forcing us into project after project against our own priorities," Alvin Woehler, executive secretary, complained to Anderson

Anderson, however, said, "The need for taxiways to keep aircraft off the runways has a higher priority" than building a control tower

Tarr Urges Help For Government To Solve Problems

MENASHA — Saying that local government holds the key to solving many of the major problems of the day, Dr. Curtis W. Tarr told Twin City Rotarians Tuesday that they should get involved in trying to improve local government. "The most that you can hope for from the Legislature," he said, "is permissive legislation" to provide local citizens with new ways of correcting deficiencies in their local governments.

Tolerable Living

The Lawrence University president and chairman of the Tarr Task Force on local government organization and finance said the three chief concerns of the times are "peace, justice and an ability to control our environment so that living can be tolerable."

Each of these, he said, has some application at the local level, and they "focus on the ability of local government to govern us in a reasonable way."

State Tax Aids

Improving the distribution of state tax aids to local governments and the means in which local property taxes are levied, he said, are two ways of improving local government. In addition, he said Wisconsin county government is "badly organized" and there are too many small units of government. His task force has recommended steps to be taken in each case, and bills are pending before the legislature now on many of the task force recommendations.

He predicted selfish interest will be the biggest hurdle for his task force's recommendations on state tax redistribution to clear in the Legislature.

"One of the limitations of local government in Wisconsin is the preoccupation of responsible citizens with their own personal tax rate," Tarr said. He predicted that more noise will be made in Madison by opponents to tax aid changes than by supporters, because "people who are helped are much less vociferous than people who are hurt." He urged "responsible citizens" to make themselves heard.

Air Force Assignment

Tarr wore both his hats, as task force chairman and as university president, changing them in mid-speech after a preamble referring to his appointment as assistant secretary for manpower in the Air Force. He recently resigned at Lawrence to take the job.

From under his educator's hat he spoke on the complaints of modern youth, drawing laughter by commenting that he believes most young people "have turned out better than you could expect, knowing their parents."

He urged adults to listen to young people's complaints, which he said are frequently justified. But he warned that elders should think out their own beliefs before putting them to the test of "cross-examination" by younger people and to be prepared to change if it seems reasonable.

Many of the problems confronting today's cities, he suggested, lie at the roots of the dissent of modern youth.

Neenah Harbor Inactive

Official Channels

NEENAH — Before the Army Corps of Engineers can complete the dredging job in the Neenah Harbor and channel which they started last fall, the city has to go through official channels to get the harbor back on the active list.

During the winter someone discovered that since 1929 the Neenah Harbor and channel has been on the inactive list, prohibiting the Corps from doing their work.

George Christoph, harbor committee chairman, Wednesday night asked the public works committee for authority to go ahead with the reactivation of the harbor.

There is another problem, however. The State Department of Natural Resources has ruled out dumping the dredgings back into Lake Winnebago because they are considered pollution.

So before the dredging can start, the city has to find a place to put the silt and soils. Christoph suggested using the material to extend Lighthouse Point about 50 feet to the northeast and evening out the shoreline from the point to Wisconsin Avenue.

But to do this, it is going to take some city funds to level out the area and landscape it as part of Riverside Park. Public works committee members were reluctant to commit "from $15,000 to $20,000 for the project."

Instead, they decided to go one step at a time. They gave Christoph authority to go ahead with applying for reapplication and at the same time ask the Department of Natural Resources for permission to dump the dredged material at Lighthouse point.

Christoph doubted whether the dredging could be completed this year. "It will probably take all year to get the harbor and channel reactivated," he said.

Neenah Planning Crackdown on Water in Sewers

NEENAH — Proposed ordinances will be drawn up to eliminate clear water from the sanitary sewers put there from residential foundation drains.

The public works committee Wednesday gave City Atty. Charles Schaller a directive to write up ordinances, which would bring the city into compliance with Department of Natural Resource (DNR) pollution abatement orders issued a year ago.

To comply with the DNR orders, Neenah, Menasha and the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission submitted proposals to eliminate clear water from the sanitary lines.

Wayne Bryan, public works director, estimated 60 to 70 per cent of the clear water could be eliminated through this process.

He proposed an inspection of homes to make sure foundation drains were not connected to the sanitary sewers. "The man who has to do this will be the most unpopular person in the Twin Cities," Bryan said, "but we have to do what we promised we would do."

Appleton Soldier Has Toe Amputated After Gun Accident

A 20-year-old Appleton serviceman home on leave accidentally shot himself in the left foot at a Little Chute home Wednesday afternoon.

Appleton police identified the victim as Garfield A. Trudeau, 2709 Heather Ave., who was to report back to his Army base at Fort Knox today. He was home on an emergency leave. Doctors at Appleton Memorial Hospital amputated the big toe on Trudeau's left foot.

Trudeau was at the home of his sister, Bonnie J. Boucher, 525 Park Ave., Little Chute, when the accident occurred. He told police he hook a 12 gauge shotgun from a bedroom. He said he was looking at the gun, owned by a Manitowoc man, with intentions of possibly purchasing the weapon.

He said he walked to the kitchen and was sitting down on a chair when the gun fired, striking him in the foot. He said he did not know the weapon was loaded.

The accident occurred at 3:45 p.m. He was taken to the hospital by his wife and his sister. There were no witnesses to the accident, police were told.

Walk-Away From Winnebago Is Sent to Waupun

STEVENS POINT (AP) — A mental patient charged with killing his parents in their rural Eau Pleine home Monday night has been committed to the Central State Hospital at Waupun for psychiatric examination.

Portage County Judge Robert C. Jenkins ordered Wednesday a 60-day period of observation for 39-year-old Casimer Mallek on recommendation of Dist. Atty. William G. Bablitch.

Mallek is charged with two counts of first degree murder in the rifle-killing of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Mallek, aged 67 and 57, respectively. The shootings took place in the Malleck home after the son walked away from Winnebago State Hospital where he had been under treatment for a mental disorder.

Casimer's 17-year-old sister, Rita, was in the house at the time of the killings but was unharmed.

The district attorney told the court that Mallek was committed to the Winnebago State Hospital for the first time in May, 1963, and had fled from the institution four times that year. On each occasion, Bablitch said, Mallek stole a car and drove to his home in Portage County.

In October of that year, Mallek was committed to the Central State Hospital where he remained for about a year, Bablitch said.

RACINE — Gifts, totaling $1,910, from area organizations were accepted by the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents at its recent meeting here.

A gift of $1,750, to be used to improve the educational program in risk insurance and actuarial science in the School of Business, was made by the Aid Association for Lutherans.

The United Fund of Hortonville, Inc., donated $160 for medical research.

Funds Okayed for Bridge at Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — The Winnebago County Highway Committee voted 3 to 1 this morning to bring a resolution before the county board to provide the county's one-third share of the cost of a new Main Street bridge in Oshkosh over the objections of Supv. Clarence Loehning of Neenah.

Loehning unsuccessfully sought to have an additional $1 million tagged on to the resolution to provide funds for construction of a bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts.

Loehning termed the state's approval of the new Main Street bridge "about as rotten, dirty politics as I have ever seen in Wisconsin. Gov. Warren Knowles has gotten my last vote."

Loehning was referring to the speed with which the state approved construction of the bridge. A public hearing on the structure, which is expected to cost $1.5 million, was held last Dec. 9.

Low Cost

Robert Graf, county highway commissioner, told Loehning that the Main Street Bridge and the Little Lake Butte des Morts Bridge could not come under the same funding program from the state and that he believed the Main Street Bridge moved as quickly as it did because of the relatively low cost.

NM 'Bigwigs'

Loehning predicted that a bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts would never come "until the bigwigs in Neenah and Menasha started hollering in Madison." He said the Town of Menasha was probably the only township in the country where the people living in one part had to travel through two different cities to get to the other side of the town.

Loehning sought to amend the motion which would provide the Main Street Bridge funds but withdrew his amendment after Supv. Floyd Shurbert of the Town of Algoma asked him to wait until the engineering study on the Little Lake Butte des Morts Bridge was completed. The county recently hired a consulting firm to conduct the study.

Voting for the resolution were Supvs. Lyle Raddatz, Town of Nekimi, Arthur Struensee, Oshkosh, and Shurbert. Loehning cast the negative vote.

Menasha Man Jailed for Bogus Checks

OSHKOSH — A Menasha man who wrote a string of bogus checks while on an "extended drinking bout" was sentenced to a total of 16 months in the Winnebago County Jail Wednesday by Circuit Judge William Crane.

Clifford Barth, 44, 212 Racine St., pleaded guilty of passing 39 worthless checks during a three-week period between Dec. 16 and Jan. 7. Another seven checks are still outstanding. The 46 checks totaled $1,502.

He was sentenced to 12 months on the check charge and four months for leaving a motel without paying the bill.

Officials indicated he may have written another 30 to 40 checks during that period. Judge Crane also ordered Barth to make restitution for the checks.

Most of the checks were passed in Winnebago, Outagamie, Waupaca and Shawano counties.

Little Chute System

Board Offers School Custodians Pay Hike

LITTLE CHUTE — The board of education Tuesday night voted to offer custodial personnel a 7.5 per cent pay increase when present contracts expire.

The board authorized Supt. Leo Bronkalla to make the offer to the custodial group and report back to the board. He also was authorized to seek a man to replace one of the maintenance men on the 4 p.m. to midnight shift.

The board adopted a policy to set charter rates for use of the district-owned school bus. This was designed to reduce requests for use of the bus for activities other than school functions and to eliminate the possibility of competing with firms chartering bus service.

The board agreed to participate in the Cooperative Education Service Agency (CESA 8) speech correction, remedial reading and psychological services for the 1969-70 school year at a cost of $9,700. Approval was given to purchase drapes for six classrooms in the elementary school at a cost of $649. Drapes will be replaced in three rooms and added in three others not previously supplied.

Bronkalla reported two teachers were listed as 1-A by the draft board. The board authorized him to seek deferments for the men since they had signed teaching contracts. They include a mathematics and fourth grade teacher.

Discussion was held on the purchase of a commercial washer and dryer for use in washing towels and athletic equipment, at an estimated cost of $2,000. Bronkalla was authorized to look into prices for laundry service to compare costs.

New Contracts

Contracts were approved for Mrs. Dennis Van Dinter, first grade; Miss Wilma Vander Heiden, fourth grade; Mrs. Warren Maass, part-time girls' physical education; and Miss Susan Bachhuber and Miss Maureen McMahon, pari-professionals to work in the kindergarten.

Bronkalla reported that about $165 was stolen in recent breakins at the school and persons responsible have been apprehended and restitution will be made. He also reported on a remedial reading and speech correction program which will be demonstrated at an April 17 program at the elementary school.

Sprinkler Malfunction Results in Fire Run

A malfunction in the plant's sprinkler system triggered an alarm that brought five units of the Appleton Fire Department to the Fox River Paper Co., at 4:50 p.m. Wednesday.

At 8:45 a.m. today, fire fighters were sent to the Lester Deltgen home, 2414 N. Owaissa St., on a lockout call.

Traffic Bill Is Approved

Safety Measure Had Been Rejected Earlier in Session

MADISON (AP) — A traffic bill won approval Wednesday in the Assembly

The house voted 96 2 for a highway safety measure which had been turned down earlier in the year's session The bill authorizes the Motor Vehicle Department to exempt some persons from certain requirements for obtaining a driver's license

Requirements to be waived, when legislators did not discuss, would allow the department to establish a "control group" for studies of mandatory highway safety regulations

The bill was sponsored by Assemblymen Stanley York, Jack Steinhilber and Robert Boche all Republicans

Bills introduced would

Prohibit garnishment without due process for collecting bills

Change the name of the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee to Milwaukee University but with the UW regents still in charge

Require the state commissioner of insurance to establish minimum standards for medical and hospitalization insurance sales, introduced by Assemblyman Lyle Kenyon R-Tomah

Fire Damage Exceeds $100,000 at Lakeland

SHEBOYGAN (AP) — Lakeland College trustees announced Wednesday that loss in a March 19 fire that swept Founders Auditorium on the campus will exceed $100,000

Damage to the building will amount to somewhere between $94 000 to $75,000, loss of drama and athletic property from $40,000 to $45,000 and loss of cabinets, bleachers, lockers and other equipment $10,000

Dr John B. Morland, Lakeland president, said trustees will consider the future of the 37 year-old brick auditorium structure at their spring meeting April 14.

Legal Service Expanding

Flexible Judicare Helps Prisoners, Consumer Public

"If we are to keep our democracy, there must be one commandment: Thou shalt not ration justice"
—Judge Learned Hand

BY SUSAN MILLER
Special to The Post-Crescent

"Judicare is a concept that can be worked with"

The words are those of Joseph Preloznik director of Judicare, the state's newest program to provide legal assistance to persons of low income He believes that modification and expansion of Judicare are possible within the present structure of the program The scope of Judicare activities proves his point

Last of a Series

Judicare expanded quickly Soon after the program was established in 1966, inmates in Wisconsin correctional institutions began writing for legal assistance in civil matters. The letters followed a general pattern

"I'm being sued"

"A foreclosure proceeding has been started"

"I have no money. I need an attorney to protect my interests."

The Judicare office decided it could help and extended its services to the three adult prisons, the eight forestry-conservation camps and the four juvenile institutions in Wisconsin Social workers were alerted to assistance available under Judicare An attorney began to visit the institutions on a regular basis

This procedure is now a regular feature of Judicare Staff attorney Kent Martin visits the institutions and interviews inmates When an inmate needs legal assistance in a civil matter, Mr Martin contacts the attorney chosen by the inmate. Problems outside of Judicare service are brought to the attention of the appropriate agencies

Facilities for individual assistance are only a part of the Judicare program Staff attorneys continually research problems affecting low income persons as a group Their research, available to local Judicare attorneys, avoids costly duplication of effort Sometimes these studies result in proposals of new laws or support of changes in the old laws

Consumer protection is an important part of this research. One letter from a small town in northern Wisconsin complained about a company promising high quality frozen food at a 25 per cent discount

"We ordered hind quarter beef and got front quarter with a lot of soup bone and hamburger we were also charged for a 17 pound ham which turned out to weigh 14 pounds

I tried one slice of it and had to pour the water off when I fried it. please let me hear from you, this meat is not safe to eat"

Staff attorneys researched this and other consumer protection problems As a result Judicare supported six consumer protection bills before the Legislature

Basic legal education for persons of low income is another area of concern A poor man must be able to recognize certain situations as legal problems with legal solutions and he must know how to get help.

Supreme Court Justice William Brennan notes that "the poor must begin to feel that the law is a part of their heritage, that it is designed for their benefit"

Educate Public

Judicare attempts to educate its public One community education program covered the entire Judicare area, employing an individual contact campaign.

In each county, workers were hired from those eligible for Judicare and were given a one-week training program. They contacted over 10,000 persons during an eight-week period Their efforts, they reported, were well received.

Additional efforts to educate the public come from Judicare staff members and various Wisconsin attorneys who donate their time to appear on radio programs or before any groups who request information

"The program would not have had a chance without the cooperation of the State Bar," says Mr. Preloznik. "We're getting a lot of gratuitous work from the northern attorneys"

Responses from counties outside the Judicare area are fairly uniform: 'Why can't we have it, too?"

Extension of Judicare to all of Wisconsin is a possibility The State Department of Health and Social Services has just approved plans to expand Judicare's legal services to welfare clients throughout the entire state Though this is not as comprehensive as the program in established Judicare areas, it is what Mr Preloznik labels "a first step" The proposal will come before the Legislature sometime in April

Judge Hand's admonition not to ration justice is a familiar one Equal justice applies not only to courtroom proceedings, but also to the outside help of an attorney

"Wisconsin Judicare," says Mr. Preloznik, "is one of the few programs in the United States which puts the State Bar as a group wholeheartedly behind a program dedicated to giving substantially equal service to the poor and to the rich"

"We're still learning. But this goal could be accomplished under this system"

Drowned Boy Recovered At Menasha

Found Five Miles From Where He Slipped Off Pier

MENASHA — The search for the body of a 6-year-old boy who drowned Tuesday below the Menasha dam ended Wednesday afternoon near the northwest shore of Little Lake Butte des Morts.

Two fishermen found the body of Daniel Christianson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shristianson, 317 First St., about 100 feet off shore near Winnebago County Trunk U.

Woodrow Wilson, route 2, Neenah, owner of the land, notified authorities at 3:20 p.m. The fishermen were identified as Norbert Hermes and Lawrence Van Lenen, both of Green Bay.

A police officer, an auxiliary policeman and a Coast Guardsman were at Fitze Park on the west lake shore, about to begin a search there, when the discovery was made.

The body of the boy, who was born June 6, 1962, was taken to Laemmrich Funeral Home, Menasha.

The boy slipped from a wooden pier at the foot of the dam nearly 24 hours earlier and dragging and diving operations had continued since then except during darkness hours.

The dam is about five miles by water from the Wilson shoreline.

Heavy spring current below the dam hampered the search, despite the closing of three of the six sluice gates at the dam by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Cities Vow To Fight for Tax Reform

ident and one of the founders of the organization, did not seek reelection and will be leaving office next Tuesday.

Festge told the group that when he first was elected mayor of Madison, he felt there was a great need for an organization to represent cities and push for solution of their problems.

"The alliance can be and already has shown that it is a very valuable tool for the cities of Wisconsin," Festge declared. "We will achieve successes in the coming days, weeks, and months and there'll be some things that will take a number of years to reach goals."

Already Noticed

Festge said the legislature already is paying a good deal of attention to the Alliance of Cities and predicted that it will continue to be "a major force to have the cities heard in Wisconsin."

Beyer, who had announced the recommendations of the executive committee and presented the slate of new officers, declared that he had urged his successor to participate fully and effectively in the alliance. He was assured this would be the case as far as Racine was concerned, he said.

"I feel the alliance offers the best means to date for the central cities of this state to gain fair and equitable treatment in the state legislature," Beyer said. "If our cities fail to get help at the state level, they will continue to deteriorate. As business, industry and residents flee to the suburbs and beyond, schools will become second-rate, there will be growing poverty and attendant social problems and city services will decline."

Beyer stressed that the resources of the cities are not keeping pace with the highest cost of providing city services, declaring, "we wimply must have sources of revenue which are fair and equitable other than the property tax."

Mayors Urged To Back Bill On Annexation

the Department of Urban Affairs which would give it authority to issue findings of fact with regard to establishment of sewerage districts.

The mayors, managers, and other municipal officials said they would watch closely any drafts being prepared on the matter of establishing the sewerage districts.

Ray E. Wach, Eau Claire city clerk, and other officials hailed the recent Wisconsin Supreme Court decision in which the City of Fond du Lac won an appeal and was told it did not have to create a metropolitan sewerage district mainly to alleviate pollution problems created by the adjacent and surrounding Town of Fond du Lac.

"We are all anti-pollution minded, but we don't want to lose any of the annexation tools we may have now, even though they are not adequate and need reform," Wach said.

Kaukauna Teacher Contract Okayed

Agreement Boosts Base Pay For Balance of Present Year

KAUKAUNA — A teacher contract which will raise base pay $600 was agreed upon Tuesday by the board of education and the Kaukauna Education Association.

The contract, which will cover the last four months of this year, boosts base pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree from $6,100 to $6,700, with a maximum of 15 steps to $10,720.

New master's degree bases is $7,236, with a maximum of 15 steps to $11,758.

Negotiations are scheduled to begin soon on terms for the contract for the 1970 calendar year.

Reimbursement Hiked

No change in insurance coverage was made while reimbursement for on-campus credits earned during the summer was raised from $30 to $35. During the school year, reimbursement for credits earned on campus will be increased from $15 to $20.

Summer school salaries were established at a flat $5 per hour rather than $100 per week.

Teachers will also be required to serve three events per year as part of their contract. Sick leave remained at 10 days accumulative to 90 days.

Negotiations between the board and teachers had been underway for almost a year.

In other business before the board, a proposal to change the structure of teaching general math on the high school level, submitted by the mathematics department, was held for further study to permit determination of costs and workability with class scheduling.

Reduce Numbers

The proposal would reduce the number of students per class in general math, but increase the size of classes in other math areas.

It is designed to permit teachers to give more individualized aid and instruction to students who appear to be weak in specific areas of the mathematic program, thus enabling them to do better work in related subjects such as home economics, science and shop.

A student council policy on school dress was referred to the administrative council for study and recommendation. The proposed policy was brief, recommending dress which is clean and does not endanger the health of other students, covers the body from the neck to the middle of the thigh. The policy also would require foot garb.

Purchase Equipment

Thomas Nytes, business manager, was authorized to purchase tele-binocular vision testing equipment and related items at a cost of $316 from Keystone View Company, Meadville, Penn.

The board also authorized someone to be trained in handling the equipment, thus permitting vision testing of all school youngsters.

Nytes was instructed to advertise for bids on a 2-car, knockdown garage built by students in the industrial arts department, with bids to be opened at the May meeting.

A request was made to the city to negotiate for a piece of property on Island Street, adjacent to the high school, or authorize the school board to negotiate for the land. The district hopes eventually to secure all property around the high school to permit future development of the physical education area.

The board approved renewing WIAA insurance coverage for the coming year and named Richard Landreman to audit school records for the year.

The club's farm relationship committee is planning to meet with the Farm Bureau unit to discuss the deer problem in the county.

Youth Admits His Kidnap Story Was Just a Hoax

OSHKOSH — A search by police from Winnebago, Outagamie and Brown counties for a man, who was said to have kidnapped an Illinois youth and forced him to drive at gunpoint to Oshkosh, has been called off.

Winnebago County Police Lt. Wilbur Fuller said this morning that David L. Dent, Hillsdale, Ill., admitted Wednesday that he made up the story of the kidnapping.

Dent had earlier Wednesday appeard at the sheriff's office here and reported that he had been forced by a man to drive through the night from Hillsdale to Oshkosh via Madison and Milwaukee.

The youth has returned home in the custody of his parents, Fuller said.

Appleton Man Arrested for Obtaining Drugs

Robert Monsour, 23, 1226 W. Spring St., who faces trial here July 30 on two counts of obtaining a dangerous drug by misrepresentation, was taken into custody by Waukesha County authorities this morning to face a similar drug charge there.

Monsour was scheduled to appear in a Waukesha County Court this afternoon. He then will be returned to Outagamie County.

Monsour, through his court-appointed attorney, asked that the charges in Outagamie and Waukesha Counties be consolidated, but Judge Nick F. Schaefer said the three counts were misdemeanors and thus could not be consolidated for trial.

Schaefer also refused to reduce Monsour's $1,000 bond. He said a bail bond study ordered this week showed the bail was not excessive.

Calumet Wants Relocation

Expressway Change Urged

The Calumet County Board highway committee has requested that a small portion of the tri-county expressway preliminary routes be changed in Calumet.

In a letter to Eugene E. Franchett, Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), the committee suggested it would hold up urging the county to buy right-of-way, about one mile south of Appleton, until the change was considered.

It is not clear why the expressway must go back and forth across Plank Road (in the Town of Harrison) wrote Supv. George Schwalbach, chairman of Harrison and the highway committee.

Good Expresway

He said the committee thought it "would provide for a good expressway and not require buying up farms and buildings of substantial size and cost south of Plank Road" if the change was made. He urged the matter be referred for consideration by COG's transportation technical advisory committee.

Schwalbach was referring to the portion of the proposed tri-county expressway which travels east and then make a 90 degree turn northward toward the Kaukauna-Little Chute area. He suggested the turn could be made sooner and less sharp to avoid crossing the road.

Calumet still had not purchased any right-of-way for the 32-mile expressway, although Appleton has made purchase for its portion in Calumet. Outagamie has purchased nearly all of its needed right-of-way and Winnebago has taken steps in the same direction.

Minor Problem

COG planners indicated they did not feel it would be a serious problem to relocate the small portion of the proposed road.

The expressway which will entwine the metropolitan Fox Cities area is expected to be a key part of transportation improvements in the area. Plans include connecting it with the proposed Green Bay-Milwaukee interstate.

Calumet officials gave their support to the project in 1964 when Calumet along with Winnebago and Outagamie appropriated money for preliminary engineering. The project has begun to move in recent years with right-of-way acquisitions.

Tenant Plan Needed to Get Housing Funds

time to analyze the plans of "like 45-page documents."

He indicated that he did not know why HUD had not sent the two plans to the housing authority sooner.

Byrnes, who said his office contacted the Washington, D. C., HUD office, indicated there could be other problems in the application, but the tenant assignment plan was the present problem.

The housing authority had applied in 1967 for funding for 200 to 250 units, but HUD Chicago officials recently suggested only 100 units be constructed. Jensen said he would show need for more.

State Revenue Office Will Help With Returns

Persons desiring assistance in filing 1968 Wisconsin income tax or homestead relief returns are reminded that the final date for filing is April 15.

The Appleton district office of the Department of Revenue, located in the courthouse annex at 401 S. Elm Street, will be open from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, to provide assistance.

Turn a Synthetic Sponge Into A Paperweight for Your Desk

BY CAPPY DICK

A synthetic sponge can be turned into a satisfactory paperweight by boys and girls who follow today's fun-project directions.

The sponge ordinarily weighs only an ounce or two and thus is not suitable for a paperweight, but when prepared properly it acquires added weight. The increase results from the fact that you hide a stone inside the sponge.

Glue the sliced sponge back together. When the glue has dried, the sponge is ready for use as a paperweight as shown in figure 2.

The soft exterior of this paperweight will protect the finish of any desk on which it is used, yet its weight will hold down a stack of papers.

Industry Works at Full Capacity; Back Orders Grow

NEW YORK — "Production of paper and paperboard reached record levels in the first quarter of 1969," Edwin A Locke Jr, president, American Paper Institute, reported Wednesday.

"Operating at virtually full capacity," Locke observed, "the industry turned out 5 8 million tons of paper and 6 3 million tons of paperboard The combined total ran nearly 9 per cent ahead of the first quarter 1968 rate At the same time, unfilled orders moved upward, attesting to the underlying strength of demand for the industry's products

Locke noted that these high backlogs, together with the vigor of the total economy, indicate that the paper industry will continue to operate at present high rates for a considerable period

Sharing in Growth

Virtually all major grades of paper and paperboard are sharing this growth Among the paper grades, the strongest gains, notes the API President, are being shown by newsprint, tissue papers and the printing and writing grades Paperboard is showing similar increases in demand, particularly those grades made from virgin pulp and used in the manufacture of corrugated shipping containers Paperboard exports, mainly kraft linerboard, hindered by the dock strike during January and February, moved sharply upward toward the end of the quarter

The American Paper Institute is the trade association serving the pulp, paper and paperboard industry

Remembered as a Star

Colleen Moore Loyal Chicagoan, Says City Good for Women

BY BOB THOMAS

CHICAGO (AP) — "This is a good city for women," mused Colleen Moore as she drove her limousine along Lake Shore Drive. "Women get things done here; they head hospitals and direct civic drives.

"Why does our art institute have such a splendid collection of French impressionists." Because when the Chicago women went to Europe a few generations ago they didn't buy Rembrandts and Van Dykes, they brought home Renoirs and Monets, which people of that time thought were scandalous. And the granddaughters of those women bought Jackson Pollocks before he was popular."

Colleen Moore, the silent screen star who epitomized the flapper age, has enjoyed a 30-year love affair with Chicago. She came here first as the bride of wealthy broker Homer Margrave. Although she has traveled the world since his death four years ago, Chicago remains her home.

Gloria Swanson remarked in "Sunset Boulevard" that once an actress becomes a star, she remains a star. Colleen Moore bears out that theory. Although she hasn't appeared in a movie since 1933, she continues to be recognized by a large segment of the population. That recognition helped carry her through two shattering crises in her life. She talked about them as she motored along the ice-packed shore of Lake Michigan:

"It was the doll house that helped me survive the bustup of my career. I was through in pictures. Oddly enough, my last picture was my best: 'The Power and the Glory' with Spencer Tracy. But the public simply wouldn't let me grow up; they wanted me to remain that little girl who asked, 'Daddy, what's beer?'

"I had my doll house, which had been my childhood dream and on which I had spent $470,000. I sent it around the country to be displayed at department stores for the benefit of crippled children. It was a great boost to my morale—and on tour in Chicago I met Homer."

Her voice grew more somber as she recalled the loss of her husband after 28 years of marriage:

"I was completely lost and didn't know what to do with my life. Then my dear friend, Adela Rogers St. John, almost literally whipped me into writing my autobiography. It was punishing work, but Adela made me stick with it. I wrote the first draft and left it on the 20th Century Limited, where the cleaning girl threw it away as trash.

"That was just as well. I wrote the book four times before I felt it was ready to be published by Doubleday."

The book, "Silent Star," was one of last year's best sellers. The shrewd Colleen visited 50 cities in 90 days to help promote it, and she discovered that the public remembered her as much for her doll house as for film roles. Now she has a new book, "How Women Can Make Money in the Stock Market."

"When I married Homer, I couldn't balance my bank book, but he educated me in finance," she said. "I told this to my Doubleday editor, Ken McCormick, and he challenged me to write a book about it."

Miss Moore parked her car before the sprawling Museum of Science and Industry and went inside to show a visitor the result of her youthful fantasies. She lovingly pointed out the chandeliers of diamonds, the minature sheet music written personally by Gershwin and Stravinsky, the teaspoon-size Bible. "The doll house will be my next book," she said.

Before she left, a half-dozen people asked her to autograph the booklet, "Colleen Moore's Fairy Castle." To them she remained a star.

McCarthy Will Be Remembered During Services

Appleton's late Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy will be honored in memorial ceremonies May 4 at St. Mary cemetery and the Outagamie County Courthouse. McCarthy died 12 years ago.

Graveside ceremonies are scheduled for 3 p.m. at the cemetery. Afterward, State Sen. Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington, will be the principal speaker at a program at the courthouse. The program will be followed by an informal dinner at the Embassy Motor Lodge.

The ceremonies were announced by Peter Wheeler Reiss, Sheboygan, president of the Senator Joseph R. McCarthy Foundation, Inc.

The Foundation is also sponsoring a memorial Latin requiem high mass to be said by the Rev. Hugh Wish at 9 a.m. May 3 at St. Lawrence Roman Catholic Church in Milwaukee.

Kim Novak Allowed To Keep Arab Colt

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Kim Novak has won permission to add an Arabian colt to the menagerie at her ranch, along with the goat, mynah bird, two dogs and cat.

"I like animals," she told the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday. "They don't lick your hand one day and bite you the next."

The supervisors voted 4-1 to grant Miss Novak a permit to keep an Arabian yearling at her 1.9-acre ranch in fashionable Yankee Point, south of Carmel.

Neighbors had complained the horse would bring flies and foul odors to the area.

'Volcano' Preview to New Series

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7 Channel 2 — Volcano: Birth of an Island is a short, absorbing piece of televiewing. It's also a preview of a new series set for next season called Challenge, which will concern itself with serious challenges that man accepts. Here it's a volcano that erupted from the sea off the coast of Iceland 1963, giving birth to an island, Surtsey, that is now supporting plant life.

6:30-7:30 Channel 5 — Daniel Boone has a good adventure in which little Israel is captured by Indians who want to trade him back to his father for a ransom of 20 rifles.

7-7:30 Channel 11 — Barry Sullivan plays himself as That Girl (Marlo Thomas) gets a small, but important role in his Broadway play. During rehearsals she runs into unexpected trouble: she is supposed to slap his face during a crucial scene, but she can't bring herself to do it.

7-8 Channel 2 — The star of The Jonathan Winters Show is king of the nudists in one segment. Later he joins guest Howard Duff for some improvised comedy. Juliet Prowse, the other guest, does two numbers and also joins Duff and Winters for a hospital drama in which poor old Maudie Frickert is critically ill.

7:30-8:30 Channel 5 — Ironside's episode, not the best of the season by far, is concerned with a bomber on a campus. His bombs, which scare lots of people, turn out to be made of talcum powder and have flags that go "bang." He's nicknamed the Glad Bomber.

8-10 Channel 2 — The Thursday Night Movie is "The Chapman Report," which is described as "provocative" (i.e. smutty). It's based on Irving Wallace's novel about a sex survey among the ladies of a suburb. Prisoners of the script include Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Jane Fonda, Shelley Winters, Claire Bloom, Glynis Johns, John Dehner and Andrew Duggan.

8:30-9 Channel 5 — You have to pay careful attention to Dragnet 1969, since the crime being investigated is a complicated one. It involves merchandise being "charged" at department stores, but never billed.

9-10 Channel 5 — Sid Caesar, Lou Rawls, Ray Stevens, Stanley Myron Handelman and Gail Martin (Dean's talented daughter) are guests on The Dean Martin Show.

Rookie Carlos May Slams 2 Homers as Chisox Win

Royals Edge Minnesota In 17 Innings

BY THE ASOCIATED PRESS

Carlos May, who helped the Appleton Foxes win the Midwest League pennant in 1967, slammed the first two home runs of his major league career Wednesday to pace the Chicago White Sox to a 3-0 win over Oakland.

In addition to his pair of solo homers, the muscular rookie socked a run-scoring single to provide the offense to go with Tommy John's 4-hit shutout pitching.

"I wasn't sure about the first homer (third inning), but I knew the second one (sixth inning) was out of the park," May said. Both homers came off starter Jim Nash.

It was a draw for 17 moves until Lou Piniella, the chess enthusiast, check - mated the Minnesota Twins.

Piniella, who had four hits in Kansas City's 12-inning opening game victory over the Twins, managed only one in Wednesday night's 17-inning affair but it came at the right moment and gave the expansionist Royals their second straight extra inning 4-3 victory over the Twins.

It was Piniella's two-out single in the 17th that chased Jack Hernandez home with the Royals' winning run and ended the marathon. That made the rookie outfielder a KC hero for the second straight day which isn't bad, considering that he wasn't even with the club until last week.

Makes 2 Errors

The Royals swapped outfielder Steve Whitaker and pitcher John Gelnar to get Piniella and after Wednesday night, it looked like a steal for Kansas City. Whitaker made two errors on the same play in a four-run California rally that helped the Angels to a 7-3 victory over the Pilots.

Piniella, who has toted his chess board to such diverse locations as Selma, Peninsula, Aberdeen, Baltimore, Elmira, Portland and Cleveland, during six minor league seasons, seems to have found a home in Kansas City.

He became an instant favorite with his four-hit debut and Wednesday's winning hit didn't hurt his standing with Kansas City fans, whose last hero was the mule that cavorted in the Athletics' outfield during Charley Finley's stay in town.

The Royals had tied the game in the eighth inning on a two-out single by Joe Foy after Rod Carew's daring steal of home had given Minnesota a 3-2 edge in the fifth.

Royals Lead

The victory left the Royals all alone in first place in the American League's Western Division.

The Little Chute Jaycees made final plans Wednesday night for Monday's all-Fox Cities athletic banquet at the Darboy Club. Shown, from left, are Jerry Locy, Joe Verbrick, chairman Tom Verhagen and Ron Revoir. Podres Returns From Semi-Pro Loop To Pitch 2-0 Victory for San Diego

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Podres of the Padres' Roll dat alliteration around your tongues, youse Flatbush Faithful of Brooklyn Tink back to dat wonderful year of 1955 when he pitched the Dodgers Dem Bums, to de world championship over dose snooty Yankees.

Now dat ain't even his biggest t'rill no more. He wins one lousy game for some boig called San Diego which sounds like a great name for a bullfighter, an' already he forgets us Podres of the Padres? What's de world comin' to, Homan?

"I knew in spring training that I could pitch in the big leagues but I still had to prove it tonight—and I think I did." Johnny Podres said Wednesday night after coming back from a year of semi-pro baseball and hurling the expansion San Diego Padres to a 2-0 victory over Houston.

Three in Row

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta made it three in a row over San Francisco 4-1, Pittsburgh sent defending champion St. Louis to its second straight setback 6-1, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 3-1 on Bobby Tolan's two-run homer, Billy Williams tied a major league record with four doubles in a nine-inning game as the Chicago Cubs walloped Philadelphia 11-3 and the New York Mets drubbed Montreal 9-5.

Podres was released by Detroit following the 1967 season after 12 years with the Dodgers and two with the Tigers. He sat out 1968, pitching semi-pro ball around his home town of Witherbee, N.Y.,

The 36-year-old left-hander gave the Astros only a second-inning single by Curt Blefary and Joe Morgan's bloop single in the third in the seven innings he worked. He also knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly.

"Winning this game was probably the biggest thrill of my career," he said. "I couldn't get a job in baseball last year. I called the Angels, the Dodgers and a lot of clubs, but nobody wanted me. They knew my age and they thoght my arm must have been broken when Detroit released me.

"I was so keyed up tonight I was wild I pitched the first two innings the way I did in semi-pro ball last year. But Al Ferrara got on me after the second inning and told me to settle down.

Settle Down

"I think I could have gone nine innings, but Preston (Manager Preston Gomez) told me at the end of the sixth that all he wanted me to do was go one more inning."

Podres is scheduled to make his next start next Tuesday night—against the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

Milt Pappas retired 14 San Francisco batters in order after allowing a first-inning run but needed relief help from Cecil Upshaw as the Braves trimmed the Giants and swept their season-opening three-game series.

Hank Aaron doubled home the tying run in the bottom of the first and then scored on Orlando Cepeda's single. The Braves got two more in the sixth on Clete Boyer's homer, Sonny Jackson's double and a single by Bob Didier.

Scattered 6 Hits

Bob Veale scattered six hits as Pittsburgh downed St. Louis. The Pirates scored twice in the fourth on Julian Javier's two-base error, a single by Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell's double and Bob Robertson's single.

They added three more in the fifth on Fred Patek's bunt, another Javier error, Matty Alou's double and a single by Clemente. Jerry May homered in the ninth.

Tolan's two-run homer in the seventh against Don Sutton of Los Angeles snapped a tie and gave the Reds' victory to relief pitcher Wayne Granger, who was on base with a walk when Tolan connected. Jim Maloney, the Cincinnati starter, left the

Packers to Play Two Home Exhibitions

GREEN BAY (AP) — Two night games are on the Green Bay Packers' exhibition schedule this season, Phil Bengtson, coach and general manager, announced Wednesday.

The Packers will meet the New York Giants Aug. 9 and play the Pittsburgh Steelers Sept. 6.

Both games, to start at 8 p.m., are at Lambeau Field.

The Giants contest has been named the ninth annual Bishops' Charities Game.

Last year, New York edged the Packers 15-14, while Green Bay clipped Pittsburgh, 21-17, in exhibition play.

The Packers' other "home" exhibit game will be the annual Shrine game against the Chicago Bears in Milwaukee. The date, which has not been definitely set, is Aug. 15 or 16.

Packers exhibition road games will be at Dallas, (Aug. 23), at Cleveland (Aug. 30) and at Canton (Hall of Fame contest against Atlanta) Sept. 13.

Play Twice in Iowa; Vanderhyden Heads Returnees

The Lawrence University tennis team opens its season with a pair of weekend matches in Iowa.

At 3 p.m. Friday, the Ron Roberts-coach Vikings play at Grinnell College. At 9 a.m. Saturday, LU invades Cornell college.

The Vikes, who posted a perfect (8-0) dual-meet season and won the Midwest Conference title in 1968, are headed by Tom Vanderhyden. Dave Holzworth and Paul Croake. Vanderhyden was the No. 2 singles champion in the circuit last year, while Holzworth and Croake were runnersup in the Nos. 3 and 4 classes respectively.

Other lettermen besides the trio mentioned, are Dave Frasch, Tom Keane, Rick Ramsey and Jim Simmons.

Bobby Smith and Jo Jo White Star In Aloha Classic

HONOLULU (AP) — Bobby Smith of Tulsa and Jo Jo White of Kansas led the favored Midwest All-Stars to a 111-89 victory over the South in the opening game of the first annual Aloha Basketball Classic Wednesday night.

Smith won scoring honors with 23 points, 17 in the second half.

Bill Bunting of North Carolina was pace-setter for the South with 19 points.

Kimberly Track Team Appears Formidable

KIMBERLY — A strong nucleus of 12 returning lettermen should make the Kimberly track team a power to be reckoned with in the 1969 outdoor season.

The Papermakers, who have already shown well in a pair of indoor meets at Manitowoc and Madison (two second-place finishes) will get their first opportunity at outdoor competition April 17 in a home dual meet against Kaukauna.

Holdovers for '69 [illegible] Gil Frick, [illegible] Jansen, [illegible] Steve Du Pont sprints; 440 relay [illegible] Jeff Wildenberg, [illegible] jump; Ken Koehn, 880 [illegible] relay; Wade Swanson, [illegible] dles; [illegible] jump; Gary Hurst, [illegible] jump; 440 relay [illegible] and Tom Ewe, 880 [illegible] relay; Jason Du Pont, [illegible] dashes; Bob Kreiger, [illegible] mile; and Steve Van Hout, [illegible] dashes, 880 relay, long jump.

Kimberly lettermen [illegible] standouts in Wildenberg, who recently cleared 6-3 in the high jump, and Koehn, who's [illegible] threatening to go under the two-minute mark in the 880. Jansen and Du Pont are third-year key figures on the team's 880 relay team, which topped off a swift 1:35.1 in the Madison West Relays last week. And [illegible] VanderVelden returns [illegible] 220, where he placed [illegible] year in the state Class B [illegible].

We've got some good individual performers [illegible] knowledges in evaluation of his squad. "But our biggest problem is our depth."

A problem spot could be the pole vault, for instances, where five sophomores are vying for varsity berths. The Papermakers will also need help in the 880 and mile runs, according to Frank.

Cold Knicks Lose to Celtics

By LARRY ELDRIDGE

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Knicks picked the wrong time to stage their poorest shooting exhibition of the National Basketball Association season, but the Boston Celtics won't mind if they try for an encore.

"That first half was the worst we ever had," Knicks' Coach Red Holzman said Wednesday night after the Celtics crushed his club 112-97 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-7 Eastern Division final series.

Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell, who played a fantastic all-around game, agreed that he had never seen the Knicks look colder.

"But if they want to do it again tomorrow night, it's okay with me," he said of the third game scheduled for tonight in New York's Madison Sqare Garden.

Hit Open Man

The Celtics were running all the way, hitting the open man, getting the good shots and making them.

The Knicks, meanwhile, hit only three of 23 shots in the first period, managed only nine of 47 for the half, and were out of the game before they knew it.

"They played well, had good defense and ran well," Holzman said, "but still we had a lot of good shots at the beginning. We just missed them."

The 35-year-old Russell scored 14 points, hauled in 29 rebounds and was his usual intimidating self on defense.

"Russell is a great defensive basketball player—he's the greatest defensice center who ever lived," Holzman said.

Bailey Howell led the Celtics in scoring with 27 points, with five other players hitting in double figures.

But the real story of the game was told in the ineffectiveness of the Knicks, who scored only 14 points in the opening period, 19 in the second session, and went off trailing 55-33 at intermission.

Willis Reed of the Knicks wound up leading all scorers with 28 points.

The easy Boston victories were a complete switch on the regular season, when the Knicks won six of seven games. Holzman said that record was misleading, however, since the Celtics were in several of those games right up to the end and could have won them.

"They played well for two games . . . now its up to us," Holzman said. "This might have given them a lift. But it didn't demoralize us. We'll just have to do the best we can."

Hortonville Has 7 Baseball Regulars Back

Polar Bears Slated To Duel Kimberly In Season Opener

HORTONVILLE — Seven regulars from last year's squad were expected to be in the starting lineup when the Hortonville baseball team opens its season against Kimberly today.

The non-conference contest, first for the Polar Bears on a 13-game schedule, will mark the debut of Hortonville's new coach, Richard Praaza. He is taking over for Norm DeBryn, who last season led the Bears to 4-1 conference and 7-5 overall records.

Regulars back from the 1968 squad include seniors Mike Olk (third base), Jerry Rudloff (shortstop, pitcher, catcher), Dick Tennie (pitcher), Dennis Tessin (pitcher), and Tom Van Camp (outfielder); junior Eric Pingel (outfield, first base); and sophomore Mark Everts (second base).

Best of the non-lettermen out appear juniors Jeff Utke (shortstop) and Neal Wnuderlich (outfielder) plus sophomores Tom Dorn (infielder), Rob Pankow (first base), Bob Young (pitcher), and Keith Miller (infielder).

Rounding out the candidates are juniors Duane Bellile (outfielder), Dave Clegg (outfielder, pitcher), and Dan Kettner (outfielder) along with soph Wayne Obry (infielder).

With veterans possibly manning seven positions, biggest problems for the new Hortonville pilot will be filling the catching and first base jobs adequately, which were left open by the graduation of Jay Cordy and Rick Pankow.

Gary Player Says a Foreigner Could Win Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Player, the tough little South African who has won all the world's major golf titles, says a foreigner stands an excellent chance of winning the Masters.

And, he hints, it just might be Gary Player.

"Americans learn the game differently than any other players," he said before setting out on today's first round on the lush, 6,980-yard, par 72 Augusta National Course.

"Everywhere else, the first thing you learn is to hit the ball straight. In this country, the first thing they learn is to hit it long. Accuracy doesn't play that big a part here.

"But, generally speaking, the courses in this country favor that type of game, the long hitter. The courses here are bigger than in other parts of the world. They're longer and the fairways are wider. The rough usually isn't that bad, so that you aren't penalized that much for a bad shot.

Courses Are Tighter

"That isn't true in other parts of the world, where courses are tighter and a greater premium is placed on accuracy rather than simply distance.

"This course is a bit different. It can be very difficult. It requires concentration and accuracy. A bad shot here can give you troubles."

Player, who won here in 1961, is one of 20 foreign players in the field of 83 competing for the famed green jacket that goes to the winner of this tournament. Among the leading contenders, Player singled out Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, whose mathematics cost him a share of last year's title, as the major threat.

Di Vicenzo, 45, shot a final round 65 last year, putting him ina tie for the top spot with Bob Goalby. But Roberto inadvertently signed a scorecard showing a 66 and was stuck with the higher figure.

Player also listed lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand, a former British Open champion, and Australia's Bruce Crampton as top contenders.

ABC-TV to Pay $13.5 Million for Olympic Rights

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. will pay $13.5 million for the television rights to the 1972 summer Olympic games in Munich, a spokesman for the Olympic organization committee disclosed Wednesday.

The spokesman said the contract between the Munich Olympic organizational committee and ABC includes $7.5 million for the exclusive rights for broadcast in the United States, plus $6 million for costs involved in the actual production.

The contract still must be approved by the organization committee's executive board and the International Olympic Committee.

Arizona State '9' Nips Badgers, 1-0

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State's impressive Sun Devils took it easy on the University of Wisconsin baseball club Wednesday, and shut out the Badgers only 1-0.

Wisconsin thus has opened its 1969 season by getting beaten in six consecutive games by Arizona State which, thanks to a warmer and longer training season compared to Wisconsin's winter indoor workouts, now has a 29-6 record.

The hosts' pitching staff held the Badgers to two hits Wednesday, singles by Jeoff Bailie and Gary Wald.

Losing hurler Lon Galli walked only one Sun Devil, struck out six and scattered seven hits.

A triple in the fifth scored Arizona State's lone run.

821st Straight Game

Billy Williams Ties Mark With 4 Doubles

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs' Billy Williams, most durable player in the major leagues, may be drawing a bead on his first National League batting title.

Wlliams, 30, tied a major league record with four doubles in Wednesday's 11-3 Cub rout of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Significantly, he laced a pair of wrong field two-baggers in matching the record which is shared by 29 players.

Southpaw-hitting Williams, who now has played in 821 consecutive big league games, long has been pegged a right field pull hitter. He is starting his ninth season.

"I worked this spring on hitting to the opposite field," said Williams, who said he needs 75 more games to break Stan Musial's National League record of 895 straight contests.

Meet the Ball

"I'm just trying to meet the ball and not worrying about which way the wind is blowing to try to reach those bleachers."

Cub Manager Leo Durocher concurs with other experts who think Williams can be a league-leading hitter by not consistently pulling the ball to right field.

"I hope Billy keeps crossing up those pitchers," said Durocher. "They keep feeding him outside pitches to stay away from his pull power and try to get him to pop up instead of hitting line drives."

Williams' fourth double was a sizzler to right field in a seven-run Cub outburst in the seventh inning.

In all, the Cubs lashed seven doubles in a 16-hit attack which included four two-baggers and three singles in the riotous seventh against two Philadelphia relief pitchers, Gary Wagner and Luis Peraza.

Seals Defeat Kings, 4-1, to Lead NHL Set

Bruins, Montreal Clash Tonight in Opener of Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oakland coach Fred Glover says it will be all over tonight if his Seals play the way they did in the last game against Los Angeles

The Seals meet the Los Angeles Kings here in the sixth game of their National Hockey League quarter-final playoff series

The Seals took a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven West Division series with a convincing 4-1 victory over the Kings in Oakland Wednesday night on the strength of two goals by Bob Dillabough and excellent goal tending by Gary Smith

If the Seals win tonight, they meet the St Louis Blues for the championship in the west If the Kings win, the seventh game will be played Sunday in Oakland

Face Montreal

In the East tonight, the Boston Bruins play the Canadiens in Montreal in the first game of their divisional championship set

"This was the best forechecking effort of the series for us," said Glover after Wednesday's game "It was a more consistent effort than we have had in a long time, not just spotty They can win if they play the way they're capable of playing"

Los Angeles Coach Red Kelly said, "The next one now is all or nothing It's at home at least They beat us at our own game I had some guys who played their hearts out and some who played half heartedly"

Kings' forward Bob Wall suffered a back injury in the second period and his participation in tonight's game was termed "very doubtful" by Kelly who will replace him with Bryan Campbell

Dillabough put the Seals ahead 2-1 and 3-1 with his goals in the second and third periods respectively Mike Laughton and Norm Ferguson scored the other Oakland goals while Gary Croteau had the lone Los Angeles score

Shoulder Separation Hasn't Bothered Hurler Tommy John

OAKLAND (AP) — When it comes time to hand out the comeback of the year award left-hander Tommy John of the Chicago White Sox has to be a candidate

John pitched a four-hit shutout to beat the Oakland A's 3-0 Wednesday at the Oakland Coliseum

Last Aug 22 John suffered a shoulder separation when he was involved in a fight with Dick McAuliffe of the Detroit Tigers

"I never really worried about my shoulder," John said "After it happened I checked on some courses at Indiana State University to see how much work I still had for my degree

"I figured I could do something else if I couldn't play baseball"

John gave his arm the first test in an instructional league in Florida last winter

"It felt fine" he said "But all I was doing then was throwing as hard as I could to make sure it didn't hurt"

This spring, Tommy didn't work on control He just threw the ball

His control was with him against the A's Wednesday He said "The first few curves I threw really worked and after that I didn't have any trouble" walked only one batter and struck out four

I didn't have good control when I was warming up," John

Baseball May Become New Winter Sport

I swear, if baseball were human, its relatives would get it committed. Or, they'd put it in a padded room where it couldn't harm itself.

It took it 100 years to get across the Mississippi River and when it did, it began throwing franchises off the back of trains. Charlie Finley has gone through towns faster than a guy with a posse after him.

The Braves went over the hill in Boston in 1953 and liked the sensation so well they haven't stopped since. They're doubleparked in Atlanta at the moment. A couple of losing seasons and they'll be tiptoeing down the fire escape there, too. They should call them "The Gypsies" or "The Burglars."

It took baseball 100 years to figure a way to do away with the second division. They have gerrymandered the face of baseball to where not only is the .300 hitter disappearing, so may the .600 pennant winner. The "world champion" some year now may have lost more games than it has won.

A New Slogan

In an effort to ensure a team may not have fanned or errored its way out of a pennant race by Mother's Day, they may have authored a new baseball slogan. You will all recall the adage, "The team that's in first place by Fourth of July wins the pennant"? In the new version, the team that's in first by Thanksgiving may not have it wrapped up.

Of course, now that they have Tartan infields, domed stadiums and four teams in California, baseball may become the newest winter sport.

As I have observed, baseball is like a dotty old maid who sits around reading her 1910 dance cards. Her eyesight is just bad enough so she looks in the mirror and sees the belle of the ball where, if she turned the lights on, she would see Whistler's Mother.

It is a game which may have little relevance — to use a term which gets considerable coinage these days — to today's generation. It is essentially a monarchical game. Baseball is not a democracy. It's a last outpost of rugged individualism, aristocracy, conservatism. It does not respond to slogans, to demonstrations. It resists change. It maintains its link to history. It is the most aloof sport. "Team play" is a myth. It is a series of solo concerts. Even the double-play is a recital for six hands. Guys who weren't speaking to each other have brought it off.

It will probably outlast its competition. You don't have to be tall to play it, like basketball, or fat, like football. You don't have to worry if your blood clots, like boxing.

Unmasks Itself

But baseball has committed the cardinal show business sin of unmasking itself publicly. Its elevator shoes are showing. The "beauty mark" proves to be a rouged wart.

You see, they turned the game over to the architects 10 years ago, and they did more mischief than the 1919 Black Sox.

The game, you must understand, derived all its mythology and statistics from flyblown, ramshackle bandboxes where God provided the lighting system and the pitchers didn't have sliders. So, 400 hitters were all over the place. Once they got Owens, Skidmore in the act, they got Ty Cobb out of it. The new antiseptic ballparks took the bat right out of the hitter's hands.

The simple solution is to move the fences back in. But the Dodgers, a team to whom "the bases are loaded" means three guys on third, have elected to move home plate out to the fences rather than vice versa. The Dodgers never do things the easy way. This means that, instead of flying out, guys will now foul out. That's the most thrilling play in sport, the foul pop to the catcher. Ranks right next to the called third strike.

Now that baseball has eliminated the second division, the home run, the spitball day games, the shirtsleeve World Series, its boast that it is the one game which never tinkers with the rules sounds a little empty. Who has to change the rules so long as he can change the geography—or geometry?

Chevy, Buick and Cadillac Make Great Used Cars

We know the used car market. Only by leasing cars with a high resale value can we stay in business. Chevrolet, Buick and Cadillac are our favorites. Year after year they trade for higher prices than any other cars in our experience. We'll stick with Chevrolet, Buick and Cadillac. You stick with us. We'll both save money.

Democrats Set Sights on 1972 House Elections

Federal Census Likely to Shift District Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Party is drafting a battle plan to apply the tools and techniques of national politics to state legislative races in a long struggle that could affect the complexion of Congress for a decade.

At issue is the process through which the House of Representatives, now controlled by the Democrats, will be reshaped as a result of the 1970 census. Population shifts revealed by the census are certain to require wholesale changes in congressional district boundaries before the 1972 House elections.

Those changes will be made by state legislatures whose members will be up for election next year.

The state races are critical to the future of the Republican party, too, but GOP strategists are confident they automatically will benefit from any realignment of congressional districts.

Backed by the most recent Supreme Court decision—that state legislatures must make a "good faith effort to achieve precise mathematical equality" in drawing district lines—the Republicans are counting on the census figures to increase the political power of the suburbs, already a key source of GOP strength. "It can't help but help us," said one party official.

Democrats also see the redistricting as crucial, and that's why the party's national committee is launching its nationwide, coordinated effort to elect more of their candidates to state legislatures in 1970.

The Democratic national chairman, Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, has handed the job to Mark Shields, director of campaigns and political organization for the committee.

Marginal Districts

Shields' battle plan, more than a year in advance of the elections, involves two steps. The first, already under way, is a study of the last election's legislative races to identify marginal districts—those decided by less than 5 per cent of the vote.

Republican-held legislative districts on that list will be the target, with the emphasis on major states whose legislatures appear within Democratic reach.

Once these key districts are selected, Harris will guide state and local party leaders in shaping a candidate recruiting plan to find attractive challengers for the Republican incumbents.

The search for candidates to challenge incumbents is likely

Students Protest

Harvard Has Bloody Clash

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — More than 400 policemen swept 200 protesters out of Harvard's revered University Hall today in a bloody clash that left 30 persons hurt and about 200 under arrest.

The helmeted officers, some swinging clubs, stormed through a mass of students to get inside the hall which had been seized Wednesday by youths protesting arvard's Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

Historic Harvard Yard was alive with turmoil. Whistles, yells, jeers and curses reverberated through the area as police, in tight formations, swept back and forth in skirmish platoons.

Bottles and other objects were hurled at police, some from neighboring buildings.

Many of those arrested were carried bodily from the hall and thrust into police wagons.

"Pusey Must Go"

As the officers pulled back, more than 1,000 young people surged through the Yard to the steps of Memorial Church, where they shouted "Seig Heil," "On strike, shut it down," and "Pusey must go."

The last was a reference to Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard's president.

The number of those inside University Hall had dwindled to about 100 during the early morning hours, but one student leader said the figure swelled to between 150 and 200 with word that police were arriving.

Colin Leinster, education editor for Life magazine, was among those injured. Leinster said he "was clubbed from behind by State Police" as he stood taking notes on the steps of University Hall.

"I spent two years in our Saigon bureau and never got a scratch," he said. "I've just been back here a month."

Another of those injured was David Geddes, a Harvard freshman.

"I was standing on the top row of steps when the police came in from the side," Geddes said. "They started piling in and came over the edge of the steps with those big baseball bat sticks. One of them clubbed me on the head and I fell down the stairs, getting clubbed all the time."

Move Smoothly

The police moved into the Yard smoothly, and within minutes formed a large rectangle in the Tercentenary Theatre, that portion of the yard traditionally used for graduation ceremonies.

They advanced on the hall quickly, driving up the steps and inside in a matter of seconds.

Later, after the bulk of the police force withdrew, a fight broke out between several dozen students and about 30 Cambridge policemen.

The students broke ranks and ran as the police, standing back to back in a tight circle, began lashing out with their clubs. One student was left face down in the grass.

The takeover of the hall was led by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

They carried one dean out bodily, and ejected several oth-

River Surges Into South Dakota City

Workers Forced to Flee Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flood fighters surrendered an 18-square-block area of Sioux Falls, S.D., to the surging Big Sioux River today after a night-long battle to plug a 100-foot break in a dike in the city's Riverside district.

"We dumped in more than 100 tons of rock, we threw in car bodies and anything else we could lay our hands on," said Joe Vanderloo, Minnehaha County Civil Defense director, shortly before daybreak. "But it was undermining faster than we could fill it up."

"After eight hours we finally gave up," he said.

The entire area, which contains a meat packing plant, the Sioux Falls stockyards and about 50 homes, was evacuated and sealed off by roadblocks. Waters were expected to reach a depth of 25 to 30 feet before cresting.

Vanderloo said pressure of the rising river—swollen by the melting of heavy winter snows—washed away boulders in front of the dike early Wednesday evening, and the dike itself went out soon after.

Some 90 miles downstream, the Big Sioux lapped at levees where she flows into the Missouri at Sioux City, Iowa, and residents of the Iowa community of Cherokee waited in emergency shelters for the Little Sioux to crest.

Twenty miles upstream from the mouth of the Big Sioux six-foot waves threatened to topple a dike at the little Iowa town of Akron.

"It's like looking at the ocean," said one work gang member. "You look west and all you see is water."

In the flood-hit Sioux City, Iowa, area police were put on 12-hour watches after a threat was received to blow up the dike and let flood waters inundate the northern area of the city, where conditions were worst.

Across the river from Sioux City, Mayor Albert Strecter of North Sioux City, S.D., said "this is the most water we have ever had here."

800 Evacuated

The population of 800 was evacuated to Sioux City and put up for the night in Red Cross emergency quarters.

The Big Sioux, swollen from a heavy snow melt in southern Minnesota and northern Iowa, flows into the Missouri at the junction of Sioux City, North Sioux City and South Sioux City, Neb.

Seven house trailers were pulled from a flooding area in North Sioux City Wednesday afternoon.

Ninety families were evacuated from Cherokee on the Little Sioux but the worst was over there, officials said.

At Spencer, Iowa, about 50 miles upstream from Cherokee, seven families were evacuated, but the river there was also receding.

Serious flooding also occurred along the Des Moines River in Minnesota and northern Iowa.

About 10 homes were evacuated in Estherville in north central Iowa on the west fork of the Des Moines. Residents of Fort Dodge on the east fork were braced for a flood crest the Weather Bureau said would occur Friday or Saturday.

In southwestern Minnesota at Windom, the rampaging west fork of the Des Moines completely cut off the northwest corner of the town of 3,691 persons. As the last of 30 families were evacuated, the only two roads giving access to the area were closed.

Downstream at Jackson, Minn., all roads but one were closed.

Mississippi Keeps Rising In La Crosse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rising Mississippi River led to evacuation of flood plain residents in La Crosse Wednesday, but officials swiftly insisted that the action does not indicate a serious flood problem for the city.

levees it designed against an 18-foot flood crest, and should have no trouble handling the 16-foot crest forecast for April 23.

The city, hard hit by floods in 1965 (water rose past the 12-foot flood stage four years ago today), expected to have about seven miles of levees completed by tonight, Schroeder said.

The members of nine families who were being moved Wednesday from their homes are residents of islands and other flood-plain features outside the protection of La Crosse's levees.

La Crosse is estimated to have invested $185,000 in flood defenses, which could prevent $12 million damage should water get as high as had been forecast March 3.

But the northland snow expected to produce the flood-making runoff has melted gradually, and most Wisconsin communities no longer expect to have trouble.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of two Wisconsin servicemen were included in a Vietnam casualty list released Wednesday by the Defense Department.

Listed as killed in action were Army Spec. 4 Larry D. Milling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Milling of rural Boyd, and Navy Hospital Corpsman 3.C. Steven J. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Smith of Manitowoc.

Huge Cutbacks Are Confirmed For Job Corps

Sen. Nelson Claims Government Saving Will be $100 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has confirmed plans for massive cuts in the Job Corps program, an action likely to stir some bitter congressional opposition despite an apparent effort to soften the blow.

A department spokesman Wednesday night confirmed earlier reports that 65 Job Corps centers will be shutdown.

Among the Job Corps centers reportedly scheduled for closing is Clam Lake's in Wisconsin.

The spokesman did not estimate the savings, but Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said they would amount to more than $100 million, a figure reported last week.

The Labor Department spokesman said an official announcement would be made Friday.

Daytime Training

At the same time the administration will propose setting up 20 to 30 "skill centers" near city slums to provide daytime vocational training, unlike the full-time residential Job Corps centers. Dropping of the 65 centers will result in displacing about half of the current 35,000 enrollees.

President Nixon announced Feb. 20 that effective with the end of the fiscal year June 30 he was ordering the Job Corps and the preschool Head Start program transferred out of the Office of Economic Opportunity with the Job Corps going to the Labor Department and Head Start to Health, Education and Welfare.

The closings presumably could not be made until after that date, giving Congress time to block transfer from OEO of the two showpiece programs.

Hearings Planned

Nelson's Senate antipoverty subcommittee has scheduled a hearing for April 18 and the House Education and Labor Committee plans to resume its hearings into the whole antipoverty program April 21.

Education and Labor chairman Carl Perkins is an outspoken opponent of transferring either Job Corps or Head Start into a line agency and has vowed to block the move.

"We're going to put Head Start and the Job Corps back in OEO," he said flatly in an interview March 15. "And we're going to repeal the provision giving the President authority to make transfers out of OEO without congressional approval." He also indicated last week the move to slash the Job Corps centers is an attempt to cut the program.

The Kentucky Democrat said Wednesday the administration was "throwing thousands of boys and girls to the dogs."

The Job Corps cutbacks were ordered by the White House after the Labor Department proposed a more modest reduction of 22 centers.

Combat Deaths Dip Sharply

SAIGON (AP) — American, South Vietnamese and enemy combat casualties dropped last week to the lowest level in the first six weeks of the Viet Cong's spring offensive, the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands announced today.

The allied announcements said 222 U.S. troops, 246 South Vietnamese soldiers and 3,220 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in action.

Military analysts said one reason for the sharp drop in fighting was that a virulent strain of malaria is hitting the enemy troops in South Vietnam and they are having difficulty getting the medicines to curb it.

U.S. Army doctors said a type of malaria known as falciparum has reached epidemic proportions in some North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units and has "seriously impaired their combat effectiveness."

Despite the sputtering of the Viet Cong offensive, now in its 47th day, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese command said "We don't think the enemy offensive is over."

The malaria situation among the enemy was reported by an Army medical team which said each month "approximately 10 per cent of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are ill with malaria, and the average time lost from duty is seven to 10 days per month for each case."

The American doctors said the North Vietnamese had brought the falciparum strain of malaria down the Ho Chi Minh trail, and the rate of the disease in some units has ranged from 50 to 100 per cent.

"In some units, the mortality rate of those afflicted has exceeded 3 per cent," the joint statement said.

"Of a total of 208 captured North Vietnamese soldiers being treated at a U.S. Army hospital at Long Binh, 28 were suffering from the malady, 10 others were believed to have it, and all the others were confirmed carriers of falciparum malaria."

Julie's Darkness Might be Ended

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A little South Vietnamese orphan started making friends today at Mount Zion Hospital.

Perhaps she can see tem by the time she goes back to South Vietnam in about six weeks.

Nguyen Thi Cong, called "Julie" by the U.S. Marines who found her near Da Nang last fall, is blind—because of malnutrition, doctors say.

"We think she could see at one time," Mrs. Gordon Smith, her guardian, told newsmen Wednesday afternoon after a 20-hour flight from Saigon.

"She takes a broom and pushes it along the floor, saying in Vietnamese, 'I'm sweeping the floor.' I think she can see some light with her right eye."

Nguyen is from 3 to 5 years old—nobody is sure of her birthdate or the village she came from. Her parents were killed in the war and her relatives abandoned her, Mrs. Smith said.

"She was just skin and bones" when she came to the United World Mission's China Beach Orphanage near Da Nang last November, Mrs. Smith reported.

Mrs. Smith's husband is director of the orphanage. A native of Toronto, Canada, she now is an American citizen working for the Protestant-run United World mission, headquartered at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The girl will undergo surgery — cornea transplants if necessary—at Mount Zion free of charge. She is the sixth Vietnamese youngster treated at the hospital. Pan American Airways flew her over at no charge.

"Vietramese people won't donate their eyes," Mrs. Smith said.

"They fear they can't see in the next world, if they do.

"We told her she would come back with nice new eyes."

THE POST-CRESCENT

Mr. Froehlich's Diagnosis

Assemblyman Harold Froehlich, speaker of the state assembly and leader of the Republican majority in that house of the state legislature, somewhat gloomily surmises that the election of Democratic Rep. David Obey in the special congressional election in the Seventh District demonstrates public disenchantment with the fiscal policies of Gov. Warren Knowles, the leader of the administration of which Mr. Froehlich is a part.

We respect Mr. Froehlich's judgment. He has built an impressive political career at a youthful age. The value placed on his judgment and capacity by his peers at Madison is shown by their choice of him for the second term as presiding officer of the lower house of the legislature.

But we fear that he is over-simplifying the questions raised in the district election. Everybody who was familiar with the history of the district knew that it was a "marginal" one, which in the argot of the politician means that it is so closely divided politically that, other things being equal, it can lean toward either major political party. It was the vigor and personality and political skill of the former representative there, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, that kept it in the Republican column for congressman for so long.

What happened, in our own analysis, is that the Republicans bungled their campaign in the district, while Mr. Obey without serious or effective challenge managed to campaign for national office largely on state government issues.

He did it so successfully, in the apparent vacuum that surrounded him, that he put his opponent on the defensive and forced him to repudiate, in effect, his own titular leader in the statehouse at Madison.

Mr Froehlich refers lugubriously to the issue of state spending and taxation to which he says the voters responded when Mr. Obey reminded them.

Admittedly, the Knowles budget is a big one. Almost surely there are disappointed voters among those who supported him last fall. But the budget is only a proposal. Mr. Froehlich's colleagues of the assembly are even now in the forefront of patient, steady, sometimes impulsive, cutting of the governor's recommendations. It now appears likely that they can reduce the new tax equivalent requirement of the impending budget bill by 25 per cent.

Meanwhile, President Nixon, who is the national leader of Mr. Froehlich's party, has asked for the continuation of the 10 per cent federal income surtax installed by the departed Johnson administration. That 10 per cent addition to the already high rate of taxation by the national government will amount to more than $300 millions a year in new tax burdens for the people of Wisconsin, or about double the amount of new taxation that is in prospect for the state. Much of the additional state tax, moreover, will be used to help in the support of local governments to prevent more dangerous pressures upon the property tax base. The national surtax will be used in a wasteful, interminable, unpopular war of doubtful legitimacy. These are the issues that should have been raised by the Republicans. Mr. Froehlich, we regret to say, is lamenting spilt milk.

Funds for Boating Facilities

Persons who use power boats for recreational purposes are entitled under present state law to a refund of the tax on gasoline they purchase for such use. But it is a tedious task to save the necessary receipts during the boating season and fill out a claim form for such refunds. The result is that a very small percentage of such taxes are refunded.

There is a bill pending in the legislature which would in effect cancel such refunds and use the resulting funds for the acquisition and construction of additional boating facilities in the state. It is estimated that under the bill some $2 millions per year would be made available for acquiring land for public access, constructing boat landings and dock facilities, shelter houses, picnic areas and toilets at access locations. The funds would be made available to municipalities for 80 per cent state aids for the cost of such facilities. Possible federal aids would further reduce the municipality's share of the cost.

The State of Michigan has followed such a policy for a number of years now, and the results are immediately obvious to any boater who has availed himself of Michigan facilities. A cruise from Door County in Green Bay waters across to the Michigan side of the bay will reveal the great contrast, for there are practically no public facilities available in Wisconsin waters.

We are certain that a large majority of boat owners would happily give up rights to the gasoline tax refund if the funds were to be earmarked for construction of facilities for their use. Passage of this bill would be another significant step in aiding Wisconsin to meet the competition of neighboring states in attracting and holding tourists.

Is Detente Once Again in the Making?

Despite the obvious reactionary attitudes of the current Soviet leaders, there are signs that efforts toward a detente may once more be in the making and coming in part from Moscow.

The Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia last August may have brought back under control the Eastern European countries but it also increased the disillusion and the fears of Eastern Europeans. Aside from the strictly military influence and the holding of the satellites by the threat of force, the invasion may have made more likely a drifting away. There is a new trade agreement between the East German Chamber of Commerce and the confederation of British industry. Hungary has agreed to use France's process for color television, and Poland recently signed contracts for some $9 million worth of British industrial supplies. The Romanian delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference denounced "military maneuvers and other demonstrations of force on the territory of other states." And a Russian leader has spoken almost approvingly of a West German political party, Willy Brandt's Social Democrats.

Last month in Budapest a communique from the Warsaw Pact Political and Consultative Committee suggested an all-European conference to discuss economic and defense problems and the possible dissolution of both the Warsaw Pact and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Although such suggestions have come before from the Communists, there was not the insistence on the recognition of East Germany and in general it appeared to be softer in tone than past communiques.

The Russians are very conscious of the increased tensions with China. They also recognize the need for improving East European economies. And it is possible that at least some influential Soviets have come to realize that isolating Eastern Europe through military pressure from the rest of the world may not work. Yugoslavia and Romania have continued their defiance of Moscow and there is the constant danger of a new outbreak in Czechoslovakia which would bring back the Russian tanks in what might be a bloodier confrontation than before.

NATO officials must now determine how to respond to the suggested pan-European conference.

Kraft Writes

Laird Approach to Ending War Gaining Adherents in Washington

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's peace plan depends on a delicate balance between two different approaches to the Vietnam problem. There is the Laird approach which emphasizes winding down the American military commitment; and there is the Kissinger approach which emphasizes a negotiated political settlement.

So far, the Laird approach has generated almost all the action. But failure to distinguish between the two approaches has built the illusion of far more progress towards settlement than has actually been made.

The Laird approach is, of course, named after Defense Secretary Melvin Laird. The idea here is to set in motion a withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam in the next few months. The withdrawal would be completed in stages over the next couple of years.

The place of the American troops in South Vietnam would be taken by two forces now being regenerated. First, there would be a much stronger South Vietnamese army, retrained and re-equipped. Second, there would be a much stronger South Vietnamese government, built around the army but broadened to engage the whole country in a large-scale political movement.

HAS POTENT APPEAL

The Laird approach has potent appeal inside the Administration. It is attractive to Republican politicos as a quick and highly visible way to meet public pressure for an early end to high American casualties.

Additionally, the Laird approach is the perfect apologia for all the ex-hawks who still hold high positions in the Saigon embassy, the State Department, and the military services. For the Laird approach makes it seem that Vietnam policy between 1964 and 1968 was just dandy -- a natural prelude to leaving South Vietnam in control of a strong army and government.

Because of this potent appeal the Laird approach has been steadily building up a big head of steam. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has announced plans to build a national political party and to beef up his army. Over last weekend, in Washington word spread that a first American withdrawal of from 40,000 to 100,000 men would be made soon.

As it happens, however, the Laird approach has some obvious flaws. There is little reason to think that the South Vietnamese forces can be soon rebuilt to the point of being able to withstand insurgent pressure unaided. There is less reason to think that General Thieu can put together a broad-gauged party.

At this point, there comes in the Kissinger approach — which is named after Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's special assistant for national security affairs. It is designed to meet the obvious flaws in the Laird approach.

The emphasis is on a political settlement worked out between the Saigon authorities and the Viet Cong insurgents. American troop withdrawals are undertaken primarily in a context of bargaining with the other side.

In recent weeks, the Kissinger approach has not been without a certain success. In particular, there was the announcement two weeks ago by President Thieu that he was prepared without prior conditions to enter into secret talks with the Viet Cong for a political settlement.

NEED SECRET TALKS

But plainly the Kissinger approach depends for its success on having secret talks on substantive matters. And all signs suggest that such talks have not gotten under way. On the contrary, the impression persists that the secret phase of the Paris talks has to do more with procedural rather than substantive issues. And according to some reliable accounts, the United States is leaving the initiative for secret talks up to the other side.

In the meantime, the Kissinger approach is obviously losing momentum. Thus last week, Secretary Laird — over the objections of Dr. Kissinger and the Budget Bureau — was able to put into effect, ostensibly as a financial move, a unilateral decision to cut back B-52 sorties in Vietnam. And a htis press conference Monday, Secretary of State William Rogers had to check the speculation that the United States would begin withdrawing troops without some negotiating quid pro quo from the other side.

The Laird approach and the Kissinger approach, in other words, seem not to be moving in harmony. The military withdrawal, which is easy but dangerous, seems to be far advanced over the political settlement, which is hard but safe.

While the Administration has got things moving on Vietnam all right, they are not necessarily moving in the direction of settlement. And unless some vitality and momentum are imported to the Paris peace talks, the Nixon administration may find itself borne ineluctably towards a bogus Vietnam settlement that looks safe but is in fact filled with peril.

Why Not Subsidize Teacher Salaries in Private Schools?

On Monday, March 24, you had an article written by Mrs. Walter Eckert, Sr., which I agree with whole heartedly. But I feel if you say you're against something, you should have a feasible solution in mind to take its place. In this line of thinking I am offering a solution to the parochial school situation. Instead of allowing a tuition grant bill to be passed, giving the pupils a $50 or $100 helping hand, how about adopting a plan to give the teachers needed for these schools a hand by helping with their salaries. To my way of thinking it is this shortage of nuns to teach in the parochial schools that is making it necessary to hire lay teachers to take their place. This therefore is creating the money problem that needs immediate attention. We as taxpayers should consider the possibilities involved if all of the private and parochial public schools closed in a short time. The influx of children into the public schools would be too great to handle all at once. It seems logical to help keep these schools open with extra funds from the taxpayers but let's do it so we can still keep our separation of church and state. Our United States Constitution provides this law: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or the free exercise thereof."

Wisconsin Report

Voter Unrest Evident In Small Margins of Hallows, Kahl Wins

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — It may be presumed that nobody who was interested or observant was surprised that Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows of the Supreme Court and William Kahl, the state superintendent of public instruction, were re-elected last week. Had they been rejected by the electorate, it would have been startling indeed.

But there is some cause for curiosity, nevertheless, that they won new terms in their respective offices by relatively modest margins. Your reporter professes no expertness in mathematical calculations, but a kind neighbor with the aid of a calculator advises that Justice Hallows' margin of the total vote was about 55 per cent and Kahl's slightly less or about 54 per cent.

In a partisan election, since the realignment of Wisconsin politics into a competitive two party system, these would be respectable margins.

But these were non-partisan elections. Moreover, in each case the incumbent had the considerable advantage of being the favorite of his respective "establishment," the bench and bar in one instance and the even more formidable public educational machinery in the other.

WHAT GOES ON?

It is true that Justice Hallows had a reasonably active opponent in the person of an experienced trial court judge, Clair Voss of Waukesha. There was some flak directed at him because he is of an age that makes it impossible for him to fill out his ten-year new term under the rule of retirement at 70.

But Kahl had an opponent who was scarcely known, who had not run before, who had no visible campaign machinery and, to all appearances the most modest of campaign funds. Under such circumstances, Kahl's victory was considerably less than overwhelming.

One recalls the speculations among the friends of both men that worried them before the ballots were counted.

Judge Voss had tried to capitalize on the "law and order" issue, which Justice Hallows evidently recognized in some of his statements which were not labeled as replies. There is an undercurrent of public concern and frustration about crime and law enforcement and what some old fashioned voters tend to regard as the coddling of wrong-doers. Is it likely that some of that feeling was registered against the head of the state judiciary?

SCHOOL TAXATION FACTOR

The Kahl vote will inspire similar reflections about a restive electorate. The municipal elections clearly showed the disenchantment of many average taxpayers. Municipal officials have worried for months about the repudiation of local bond issues, including those marked for schools.

In the Seventh District special congressional election, victorious Rep. David Obey deliberately, and as it turned out, shrewdly pegged his campaign on the tax and budget troubles of the state government and drove his opponent, a member of the state administration party, into awkward retreat.

Normally, non-partisan public officials in Wisconsin are re-elected with relatively little difficulty if they have given a reasonably good account of themselves and if they have avoided egregious blunders that can be exploited by an opponent. Justice Hallows and Kahl have conducted themselves diligently and carefully. With regard to specifics, there were no issues involved in their campaign.

Thus, it is a reasonable speculation that something else is going on, that the voter is restless, resentful, openly angry in many cases, and is inclined to grasp any opportunity to demonstrate it.

These men were required to face such unrest, with the result that they came out of their contests less impressively than would have been regarded as natural in any other time.

In the unprecedented boom of the last decade, it is disheartening to realize that the two greatest "growth industries" in the U. S. have been — warfare and welfare.

The prime reason for congestion and lack of physical amenities in the large cities is that "space" is created by default rather than by design: it's what is accidentally left over after buildings have been put down, parking lots blocked out, and expressways sliced through, so that "negative space" is all the urban-dweller gets.

"A clash of doctrines," said Whitehead, "should be regarded as an opportunity, not as a disaster" — but when doctrines are not permitted to clash (as on most university campuses), then this frustration quickly turns into militant confrontation, which solves nothing, but only embitters and entrenches both sides more firmly in their dogmas.

In ancient times, a successful warrior was thought to be competent in running the affairs of state; in medieval times, a successful churchman; in our time, a successful bureaucrat on the other side of the Iron Curtain, and a successful businessman on our side — what we have not grasped in all these centuries is that no special class or elite is specifically gifted in running the affairs of state, and that success in one field is specifically gifted in running the affairs of state, and that success in one field is no guarantee of proficiency in another.

Teenagers Did Their Good Deed on Easter

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I would just like to say a few words of praise for today's teenagers. Easter Sunday we were out for a ride with our four children, when we discovered we had a flat tire and pulled into Valley Fair to change it, when six clean cut looking teenagers pulled up and offered to change it for us, as my husband was all dressed up.

We didn't get any names but would like to take this opportunity to thank them for their politeness and thoughtfulness.

Found Five Miles From Where He Slipped Off Pier

MENASHA — The search for the body of a 6-year-old boy who drowned Tuesday below the Menasha dam ended Wednesday afternoon near the northwest shore of Little Lake Butte des Morts.

Two fishermen found the body of Daniel Christianson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shristianson, 317 First St., about 100 feet off shore near Winnebago County Trunk U.

Woodrow Wilson, route 2, Neenah, owner of the land, notified authorities at 3:20 p.m.. The fishermen were identified as Norbert Hermes and Lawrence Van Lenen, both of Green Bay.

A police officer, an auxiliary policeman and a Coast Guardsman were at Fitze Park on the west lake shore, about to begin a search there, when the discovery was made.

The body of the boy, who was born June 6, 1962, was taken to Laemmrich Funeral Home, Menasha.

The boy slipped from a wooden pier at the foot of the dam nearly 24 hours earlier and dragging and diving operations had continued since then except during darkness hours.

The dam is about five miles by water from the Wilson shoreline.

Waupaca Treatment Plant Plans Under State Review

$440,000 Plant Addition Would Be for Secondary Handling of Waste; Tax Already Levied

WAUPACA — The $440,000 proposed secondary sewage treatment plant addition for the City of Waupaca moved one step closer to reality this week when it came up for review by engineers of the state's bureau of water supply and pollution control.

"The plans and specifications are now under study," he added "If the department approves the plans, the city can go ahead and build If we require any changes, we will write your city engineer and through conferences I am sure any changes will be made to make the plans acceptable to us."

The plans were submitted to the State Department of Natural Resources on Feb. 10 by Iver Oerter, city engineer Since then he has made repeated telephone calls and visits to the department inquiring about the progress of the study.

Plans must be approved by this department in Madison before the secondary treatment addition can be built. Waupaca has the money and can start construction without delay.

In a Hurry

George Hansel, engineer and chief of the waster water systems, said Thursday, "We have started looking at the Waupaca sewage treatment plans. We know that Waupaca is in a hurry.

The addition to the present sewage treatment plant, which is only a primary treatment facility, has been in the talking stages for years. The city council acted last year to create a sewage commission and levy a sewage tax to pay for the proposed secondary treatment addition.

First Payments

The delay during the past two months may be the primary cause for the obvious mumbling, grumbling and fumbling at the city office these past 10 days as citizens have paid their water bills, pus sewage tax bill for the first time.

Ann Luther, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Luther, 1345 Waugoo St., nominated by her school counselor, will be cited for her service.

Drug Organization

Miss Wolfson's service to the community includes the organization of Smarteens, a national club to help students on drugs and educate others about the problem.

Miss Luther's honor will come because of her school service in the Youth Council, and Student Council and re-evaluation of a coffee house.

William Dolley's citation will be for an act of bravery in July, 1968. He heard a friend, who had slipped into the Fox River, call for help. Although a beginning swimmer himself, Bill reached for his friend and, unable to reach him, looked for a long stick and calmly called instructions not to thrash water to the friend, before pulling him to safety.

Lee Schmidt's act of bravery took place at the rural family home in August, 1968. A gas explosion caused intense heat and set fire to a brother's clothing. Without regard for himself, Lee carreid his brother from the fire, and rolled him in the grass to extinguish the flames. Both were severely burned despite the youth's quick action.

Unaware Man Wanted

Robbery Suspect's Companion Is Back

A Neenah woman whom authorities believed was with a gunman who held up the Greenville Branch of the First National Bank of Appleton made a surprise appearance at the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department Wednesday afternoon.

The 42-year-old woman told sheriff's investigators and FBI agents she did not know her companion, Edward P. Crotteau, was wanted for the bank robbery until she heard a news broadcast in LaCrosse Wednesday morning.

Crotteau, whose last known address was 408 W. Seventh St., Appleton, was named Tuesday night in a federal warrant charging him with the Tuesday morning bank robbery which is believed to have netted him $12,000.

Still Sought

Crotteau, who lived at 617 Wilson St., Neenah before moving to Appleotn four months ago, is still being sought Until the Neenah woman turned herself in Wednesday, authorities believed Cortteau might be headed for Alabama with her. The FBI alert, at first issued for nine states, was revised to include all 50 states Wednesday night.

A sheriff's department investigator, said the woman called the department at 1:20 p.m. Wednesday, saving she wanted to talk with authorities.

The woman, who reportedly is separated from her husband, said she stayed at an Appleton area motel Monday night.

She said Crotteau, whom she had known for some time, came to the motel west of the city about noon Tuesday. The Greenville bank robbery occurred about 11:30 a m. Greenville is about seven miles west of Appleton.

The woman told authorities she and Crotteau, 62, drove to Waupaca, then to Wisconsin Rapids, in separate cars. Crotteau reportedly conducted business in Wisconsin Rapids.

Drove Two Cars

From there, they drove to La Crosse, still in separate cars, the woman said. They stayed in separate motel rooms in La Crosse Tuesday night

The woman said they were returning from breakfast early Wednesday morning, when she heard the radio news broadcast in which Crotteau was named as the robbery suspect. She said she was alone in her car at the time.

Authorities quoted the woman as saying she told Crotteau she did not feel well. They parted, and she returned to the Appleton area, arriving about noon Wednesday

The woman told authorities she had no idea Crotteau was suspected of robbing a bank.

Outagamie County authorities believe Crotteau also attempted an armed holdup at the Freedom State Bank about 9 a m Tuesday. He walked out of the bank when told that the money was in a time-locked vault

School Board at Clintonville Approves Hiring 3 Teachers

CLINTONVILLE — The board of education Tuesday night approved hiring of three teachers for the 1969-70 school year — two English teachers for senior high school and a remedial reading teacher.

Ellen May Buchberger, of Mattoon, was approved for the senior high school English vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Sigrid Shaw. Miss Buchberger will graduate in June from the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, with a major in English. She did six weeks practice teaching at the senior high school under the direction of Joan Paulson and Dennis Bessette.

Mrs Charlene Olson was hired for the English vacancy caused by the resignation of Jean Ferguson Mrs. Olson taught here two years ago and has majors both in business education and English. She has been teaching English at Barron High School for the past two years. Both were recommended by Supt. K. O. Buchberger.

Approval was given to the action of the bus special committee for the purchase of a Ford school bus chassis (for 66 passengers), a Chevrolet school bus chassis (for 48 passengers), and two Ward school bus bodies, one 66 passenger and one 48 passenger.

More Seating

A communication was read from the Area Concert Theatre organization stating that 504 tickets had been sold for its concert series for October, January and March; and asking if it would be possible to remove a partition at the rear of the junior high school auditorium to increase the seating capacity.

The board viewed the area in the auditorium, and then voted to postpone removal of the partition until a further study is made.

Bids to be Taken on Major Project

Marion City Hall Will be Remodeled

MARION — Bids for a major remodeling of the city hall will be advertised for soon by the city council.

Ald. Norman Fischer and Robert Eggleston outlined before the city council Monday evening a long range program which would be spread over several years.

The project will include some rewiring, lowering of ceilings in portions of the building, remodelling the dining room and kitchen, installation of new doors and seamless flooring, and painting the restrooms.

No cost estimate has been made, as specifications are still being drawn up. The council will advertise for bids when specifications are ready.

The council could delay the remodeling, however, if costs are too high, Mayor William Bertram said.

Program Directors

In other business at Monday's meeting, the council decided to hire directors for summer baseball and swimming programs again this year. Ald. Bill Knitt again offered the use of his backyard pool for the swim program while the Marion pond reclamation project is in progress.

It was decided that the council will ask for bids on a new mower, as the old one is considered to require too many repairs.

The council also:

Decided to study a proposal by Ken Robenolt for an ordinance to require a permit to open streets in areas containing underground gas and utility lines.

Level Sand Pit

Voted to have Mayor Bertram issue a directive against further removal of fill from a sand pit on the south side of town and to have the "eyesore" leveled and trees planted.

Calumet Wants Relocation

Expressway Change Urged

The Calumet County Board highway committee has requested that a small portion of the tri-county expressway preliminary routes be changed in Calumet.

In a letter to Eugene E. Franchett, Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), the committee suggested it would hold up urging the county to buy right-of-way, about one mile south of Appleton, until the change was considered.

It is not clear why the expressway must go back and forth across Plank Road (in the Town of Harrison) wrote Supv. George Schwalbach, chairman of Harrison and the highway committee

Good Expressway

He said the committee thought it "would provide for a good expressway and not require buying up farms and buildings of substantial size and cost south of Plank Road" if the change was made. He urged the matter be referred for consideration by COG's transportation technical advisory committee.

Schwalbach was referring to the portion of the proposed tri-county expressway which travels east and then make a 90 degree turn northward toward the Kaukauna-Little Chute area. He suggested the turn could be made sooner and less sharp to avoid crossing the road.

Calumet still had not purchased any right-of-way for the 32-mile expressway, although Appleton has made purchase for its portion in Calumet. Outagamie has purchased nearly all of its needed right-of-way and Winnebago has taken steps in the same direction.

Minor Problem

COG planners indicated they did not feel it would be a serious problem to relocate the small portion of the proposed road.

The expressway which will entwine the metropolitan Fox Cities area is expected to be a key part of transportation improvements in the area. Plans include connecting it with the proposed Green Bay-Milwaukee interstate.

Calumet officials gave their support to the project in 1964 when Calumet along with Winnebago and Outagamie appropriated money for preliminary engineering. The project has begun to move in recent years with right-of-way acquisitions.

State Dog? Why Not?

CLINTONVILLE — There's a state flower and fish and bird and tree and there are proposals to name a state rock and a state fossil. So why not a state dog?

Burr E. Tolles, high school principal here, who evidently feels dogs are being overlooked by the state lawmakers, has asked Assemblyman Francis Byers, R-Marion, to introduce a bill in this session of the legislature calling for the Dalmatian to be named the official Wisconsin state dog.

In picking the Dalmatian to join the wood violet, the muskellunge, the robin, the sugar maple, as well as the white-tailed deer and the badger as state representatives, Tolles pointed out that Clintonville is the home of FWD Corporation, one of the state's great industries and the world's largest manufacturer of fire trucks. Dalmatians are the traditional "firehouse" dogs and long have been associated with fire trucks. A logical choice, he feels.

Drive Against DDT Taken to Resorts

Committee Told Fishermen Will be Warned of Dangers of Poisoning

Special to The Post-Crescent

MADISON — The State Assembly agriculture committee this morning was given a firm warning that the Wisconsin Resource Conservation Council will not wait for passage of a bill to ban the use of DDT, but plans immediate action to alert state residents and vacationers of the possible dangers of eating fish from Wisconsin waters.

Martin Hanson, Mellen, council secretary, told the committee the council not only favors passage of Bill 163-A, but plans to place handbills in every resort and recreation area of the state this spring and summer warning that until the ban is passed, "fish eaten from Wisconsin waters could be dangerous to human health."

Bill 163-A would ban all use of DDT in Wisconsin.

Scientific Testimony

"I have not come here," Hanson stated, "to offer testimony on the scientific aspect of a DDT ban. The council feels there already has been an overwhelming amount of scientific testimony given by experts in the field to warrant passage of Bill 163-A.

"I am here, rather, to inform this committee that we already have had thousands of handbills printed warning of the possible health hazard caused by the level of DDT found in fish taken in Wisconsin waters. We intend to distribute these warnings to the people of this state and to out-of-state tourists."

The council is made up of more than 35 independent groups, including the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Sierra Club, the Audubon Society and the Dane County Conservation League.

Lack Financial Power

Hanson warned the committee that "we intend to make up in man power what we lack in financial power in the fight against the giant pesticide industry. We hope our efforts will help convince you that the ban is needed," he concluded.

The handbills, printed by the council in red ink, feature a large "Warning" and quote statistics concerning the pesticide danger appearing in recent newspaper articles.

Among the points made are:

— Some "21,000 pounds of Lake Michigan coho salmon were seized by the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) because of dangerous levels of pesticide residues. FDA analyses have shown the concentration of DDT in salmon to be up to 19 parts per million. . ."

— "World Health Association standards for DDT levels in food is 7 parts per million. . ."

— "DDT levels in U.S. humans is now 12 parts per million and going up."

Disposal Plant Plans Under State Review

ous construction, is confusing.

Until Feb. 1 the operation of the city sewage treatment plant was financed from general taxes. However, the ordinance passed last December established a sewage commission and the sewage tax.

The new tax is levied to raise approximately $65,000 this year. It will be used to support the sewage treatment plant now operating and to retire the debt on the $440,000 addition.

City officials set the sewage tax rate based on water consumption and determined that 45 per cent of the users' water bill would be paid as sewage tax on April 1; 90 per cent of the water bill paid on May 1 and 135 per cent of the water bill paid on June 1 and thereafter until the new sewage treatment plant is paid in full.

Waupaca is one of the last cities in the county to levy a sewage tax. Iola, Weyauwega, Manawa, Clintonville and New London have paid for this service by direct tax for a number of years, according to Mrs. Harriet Ward, city clerk.

The city borrowed $650,000 last fall for the secondary sewage treatment addition, plus the new city office building, city well No. 4, engineering, a lift station on the western edge of the city and other city projects. Of this amount, $434,000 has been earmarked for the sewage plant addition and it has been reinvested at a suitable interest rate to equal the borrowing interest rate.

Youths Sent to State School

Two of Four Involved In Burglaries Placed Under Supervision

Two of four Appleton youths involved in several area burglaries were sent to the State School for Boys at Wales Monday

Two other boys were placed under one year's supervision of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services

One of the two 14-year-old boys sent to Wales was involved in four burglaries at the Appleton Curling Club between Dec. 17 and 23. The other three youths also were involved in some of the Curling Club burglaries. Beer, a small amount of money, and blank checks were stolen from the club.

Check Forgeries

Three of the boys also were involved in check forgeries. Three forged checks, totaling $141, were cashed at Appleton and Little Chute service stations.

Two of the boys burglarized the home of Dr. Peter Van Derhei, 1225 W. Commercial St., on Nov. 30, and stole about $70.

One of the boys who was committed to the state institution stole more than $75 from St. Joseph Church on four occasions in December, Appleton police said.

The two youths who were not sent to Wales are 16 years old. All four boys appeared before Judge Raymond P. Dohr, of the Juvenile Court.

Interest Rates Pose Problem On Bonding

Municipal Finance Officers Will Discuss Current Situation

What to do about floating bond issues during the current period of high interest rates?

The perplexing question will be pondered by members of the Municipal Finance Officers Association of Wisconsin during a daylong conference at Oshkosh Friday.

Several cities, which had scheduled bond issues for this spring and summer, have been considering holding off the sales until this fall.

Consultants Hopeful

Bonding consultants, including the Minneapolis firm that advises the City of Appleton, are hoping the interest picture will take a turn for the better within the next six months.

David Champion, Appleton, will be among the 30 municipal finance directors attending the Oshkosh meeting.

"I believe advising city councils on when and how to bond is the biggest problem facing municipal finance directors today," Champion said.

He predicted the association would take a favorable stand on proposals before the legislature to lift the 6 per cent bond interest limitation to eight per cent.

Main Speaker

Michael Borgi, representing a Chicago-based financial consulting firm, will be the main speaker at Friday morning's program at the Pioneer Inn, discussing, "Proposed Wisconsin Regulations and Legislation Regarding Municipal Borrowing" and "Federal Proposals to Expand Municipal Bond Marketing."

In the afternoon, Ed Johnson, Madison, executive director of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, will take on legislation affecting municipalities and finance officers.

Henry Schreve, West Allis comptroller and former Appleton finance director, is association secretary.

Industry Works at Full Capacity; Back Orders Grow

NEW YORK — Production of paper and paperboard reached record levels in the first quarter of 1969 Edwin A Locke Jr president American Paper Institute reported Wednesday

Operating at virtually full capacity Locke observed the industry turned out 5.8 million tons of paper and 6.3 million tons of paperboard The combined total ran nearly 9 per cent ahead of the first quarter 1968 rate At the same time unfilled orders moved upward attesting to the underlying strength of demand for the industry's products

Locke noted that these high backlogs together with the vigor of the total economy indicate that the paper industry will continue to operate at present high rates for a considerable period

Sharing in Growth

Virtually all major grades of paper and paperboard are sharing this growth Among the paper grades the strongest gains notes the API President are being shown by newsprint tissue papers and the printing and writing grades Paperboard is showing similar increases in demand particularly those grades made from virgin pulp and used in the manufacture of corrugated shipping containers Paperboard exports mainly kraft linerboard hindered by the dock strike during January and February moved sharply upward toward the end of the quarter

The American Paper Institute is the trade association serving the pulp paper and paperboard industry

Changes Seen In U. S. Role In Philippines

'Soapy' Williams Hopeful Relations Will Stay Friendly

MANILA (AP) — After 10 months as ambassador here G Menren Williams sees problems and changes ahead in U S -Phi l ppine relations

' But whatever you see on the surface must not mislead you he said "Basically we ll find ourselves friends and allies f ndamentally v e share common beliefs in democracy and have long friendship and mutual interests in defense and in busi ness "

Williams, a long time Democrat nicknamed Soapy gave his views in an interview before his departure for home recently He came to the Philippines last June 15

The 58-year old ambassador said he expects changes in business, in the U S military bases agreements and in a continuing accommodation for the dynamics of Filipino nationalism '

Anti-Americanism is causing concern, he said But he added that while the United States must not take the Philippines for granted pro American feelings still are considerably greater than anti-Americanism

He said the ruling classes in business politics and religion are showing signs of opening up ' They are being satisfied with a smaller piece of the pie " he said and are yielding to changes encouraging the development of a managerial class and recognizing the need for wider distribution of wealth

A major problem Williams said, is that the country has "great resources and is not using them—that is the tragedy " He contended there is a vital need for increased capital to develop resources and create more employment

Concerning what he has previously described as an "uncertain" climate for foreign investment. Williams said every country should protect the interests of its nationals. but that there is a need here for a re-evaluation to see if what is being done is really best for the country in the long run

Among the strongest U S contributions here in the last year, Williams mentioned support of agricultural advances, aid to the farmer's credit organs of the land reform program, business loans, and improving labor relations for Filipinos employed by the U S government which is second only to the Philippine government in the number of Filipinos it employs

Coffee May Not be Bad for You at All

By. George C. Thosteson, M. D.

Dear Dr Thosteson: I love coffee. My friends tell me I will pay later in kidney problems if I don't cut down. I drink six to eight cups a day. — D. A.

Don't put too much stock in what your friends say, because they are giving coffee "a bum rap." I'm not saying that some folks shouldn't give up coffee, or switch to types with the caffeine removed, but arbitrarily saying that coffee is bad for people is not based on fact.

The false notion about kidney damage probably envolves from the fact that coffee — and the effect of the caffeine in it — can stimulate kidney action. Some individual finds that a very small amount of coffee, say just one cup, can have a marked effect. Others don't.

But saying that stimulation of kidney action is going to be harmful simply is not true. Coffee has no deleterious effect on the kidneys.

The caffeine also has stimulating effects in other ways. For most folks, this is what affords a mild pick-me-up effect.

Too much coffee can cause unpleasant stimulation in some individuals — quickend heart beat, extra heart beats so the heart seems to "skip a beat" (which can be disquieting), jitters or difficulty in sleeping — and some people find that coffee, by stimulating the digestive tract, can cause upset stomach or make the intestine "gassy."

If coffee causes such symptoms, then the person is drinking too much for his own comfort, and ought to cut down or cut out coffee, or switch to the caffeine-free varieties.

I'm often asked how much coffee is too much. There is no answer that will fit everybody. A cup to two may disturb one person, while a neighbor may drink a dozen or more cups without difficulty.

The only sensible answer is to watch for the symptons I've mentioned. If they appear, they may be due to coffee, or may be due to something else. If, under such circumstances, reducing your daily quota of coffee relieves the symptoms, then you have your answer.

Coffee is too useful a beverage to condemn out of hand, but it is a good idea to know what to look for in the way of coffee nerves.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 10-year-old daughter has a past history of milk allergy causing eczema. When it flares up badly I take all milk away from her. I wondered if she should have calcium during these times? — Mrs. L. S.

A calcium supplement in liquid or tablet form would be in order. Powdered soy bean products (as soy bean "milk") contain nearly as much calcuim as milk and may be used in cases of milk allergy. Pasteurized goat milk can be considered. Remember that calcium is obtained from other foods: leafy vegetables, nuts, meats, fruit, and vegetables.

Dear Sir: We have been thinking for a long time of donating our bodies to a hospital when we die. Would you advise us what to do? My husband and I have nothing wrong with us and we are both in our mid-50s. — Mrs. E. G.

I would suggest that, instead of going to a hospital, you write to the dean's office of any large medical schools (which, of course, have related hospitals). Legal arrangements have been made in advance, and the medical school people can guide you as to what papers are required in your state.

Dr. Thosteson is happy to receive readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column. However, due to the great volume of mail received daily, Dr. Thosteson regrets he cannot answer letters individually.

Educationist Says Students Know Best When to Leave Room

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Students should be permitted to leave the classroom whenever they need to without going through the old formality of raising their hands and asking permission, a leading Canadian educationist says.

Lloyd Dennis, Co-chairman of the Ontario Royal Commission on Education, said schools that make pupils put up their hands are punitive, dictatorial and authoritarian.

He told 1,000 teachers at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Teachers Federation that the individual knows best when he has to leave the room.

Pavement Plato

2-Career Life Next Ideal for Americans

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) —Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato:

Would you like to live a two-career life? In another generation it may be commonplace.

One of anything no longer seems to satisfy us. In an age of abundance we crave at least two of everything—and sometimes more than two.

There was a time in American life, and not too long ago, when a family took pride in the fact that it had finally moved into a house with an indoor bathroom. Now if we don't have a bath for every bedroom we feel underprivileged because we are not keeping up with the Joneses, that mythical, live-it-up family that sets the standards of status.

One Apiece

It is the same way with automobiles, radios and television sets. Once we counted ourselves fortunate if we had one of these mechanical symbols of plenty.

Today these onetime luxuries have become necessities, and many a family feels like it is living on Tobacco Road if it can afford but one of each of them.

A suburban wife whose husband drives his car to work thinks her existence unbearable if she doesn't have a runabout charot for her own needs also. Two teen-agers in the same house find it impossible to listen to the same radio, and each would be sure his growth would be stunted if he had to watch the same television programs as his parents. Thus a minimum of two sets is imperative.

Two Homes

The same trend is taking place in homes. More and more families with a house or apartment in the city are finding it difficult to hold their heads up in the neighborhood if they don't also own a small place in the country.

Since the two-of-everything philosophy has spread so widely, how long will men stay happy having only one career in their lifetime? Why should a man labor at the same task, sinking ever deeper in its dull routine, from the age of 20 or 25 until he retires at 65?

Well, as a matter of fact, millions of Americans already are enjoying second careers or planning them.

Early Retirement

Many government employes across the nation, ranging from bus drivers, firemen and cops to military personnel and FBI agents, can retire at half-pay after a stated period, usually 20 years, leaving them free to start fresh careers. A growing number of business firms are also offering inducements for early retirement.

The prospect is theoretically enchanting. Wouldn't it be fun, if you had enough money to get by, to try your hand at something new? Doesn't everyone secretly yearn to prove he has more than one arrow in his quiver and more than one string on his bow?

Often those who have a chance at a second career do better than they did in the first one. Their lives are happier and more interesting. They regret only that they didn't make the change sooner.

Will It End

One wonders, however, where this appetite for two or more of everything will end.

If we get so we are never satisfied with one of a kind of anything, will monogamy itself endure?

Why should a man settle for just one wife if one auto, one bathroom, one television set, one home, and one career aren't enough for him? Won't he sooner or later want at least two wives—one to cook his meals, do his laundry and rise his kids, and a second wife to peel grapes and plop them in his mouth during his leisure hours?

Don't say it can't happen here. This is the century of change, for better or worse.

Returning Students Examined by Teachers

MONROEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — When pupils returned to Gateway High School after Easter vacation they were met at the door by teachers who examined girls' hemlines and boys' sideburns.

Several of the 1,950 pupils were sent home Tuesday. For wearing "micro-mini skirts" or sideburns "too long."
